Hail to El Ouafi, the Arab.
How's Your Neokinesis?
Absit Omen, Alias Unberufen.
California's Summer.

—By ARTHUR BRISBANE—

(Copyright, 1928.)

EL OUAFI, Algerian Arab, won the Olympic Marathon yesterday, carrying the colors of France, outrunning all the proud fair-haired Nordics, including the "iron men" from the north.

Plaza, from Chile, a Latin, was second. Two Japanese were among the first half dozen to finish the long, hard race.

The original Marathon runner that dropped dead would probably have been nowhere in yesterday's race. On the other hand, he will be remembered when El Ouafi, Nurmi and Ray are forgotten.

DR. TILNEY, professor of neurology at Columbia, says things to annoy a fundamentalist.

Your thinking power, you may not know it, is just plain "neokinesis." You develop that while other animals squandered it, whales and seals in the sea, horses racing around. Bats, which like whales and ourselves are mammals, wasted their neokinesis flying in the air.

LUCKILY your ancestors were tree-climbing mammals. Holding to branches, their paws changed to claw-like hands and their activity stimulated the brain to thought. Neokinesis had a chance to develop among the peaceful tree branches.

The hands, making signs, led to speech, and there you are. All that we are we owe to neokinesis, properly applied.

PROF. TILNEY'S books on the brain will give you much encouragement. We have hardly started our brain development. You can buy now Dr. Tilney's book, "The Brain from Ape to Man." Two other books on the brain will appear later. Dr. Tilney does not say who invented neokinesis. That is the puzzle. As the little boy said when he was spanked, "Who started this idea?"

THIRTY-TWO million francs Uncle Sam paid for land on the Place de la Concorde in Paris. There he will build a modern palace, with nice big columns, to house the American ambassador.

The site purchased is only a few feet from the spot where the French cut off the heads of Louis XVI, Marie Antoinette and others.

Absit omen, or "unberufen," as the Germans say. When you see a republic imitating royal foolishness you remember Prudhomme's wise saying:

"Monarchies are destroyed by poverty, Republics by wealth."

IT WILL interest the country to know that heat killed 14 in and around New York yesterday, and others the day before.

California would like the world to know that the state is primarily a summer resort.

It is, of course, marvelous in winter. But to know California at its best, go there now.

For a really cool climate, go to San Francisco. To enlarge your knowledge of this country, and your admiration for it, go to Seattle.

A RUSSIAN flier hunting for the lost Italians, marooned on the ice without food, killed a Polar bear and lived on him. That is the kind of Russian aviator Babushkin is. Once he was a laborer. Under the Czars he would have died a laborer. Now at 40 he is a flier and a good one. Perhaps Bolshevism really does give workmen a chance.

WHEN Commander Byrd goes to the South Pole, establishing his base in Whale Bay, 800 miles north of the Pole, at the far end of New Zealand, he will have no food trouble.

In the Antarctic wastes are no bears, nothing to frighten seals that abound, and are fearless. Byrd will kill a few tons of them and they will keep fresh indefinitely, with temperature 40 below. That fresh meat will protect his expedition from scurvy, curse of explorers.

FOR a change there are penguins, solemn creatures, looking like little men, walking around, so friendly, coming up to the tents, and very good to eat.

It must be unpleasant to knock the little creatures in the head.

VARIOUS automobile companies have broken sales records in the first half of this year, and sales in the second half will equal $1,500,000,000 at least.

A few years ago that would have made old-fashioned bankers predict disaster.

The automobile, making vast tracts of land accessible, has increased the value of real estate so enormously that the cost of cars that cause the increase is nothing. For every dollar spent on automobiles, land values have increased more than ten dollars—to say nothing of the time saved, happiness increased.

SAILORS call the trip westward across the Atlantic "uphill," and another airplane has learned that it is an accurate description.

The courageous Polish aviators are safe, which is the main thing. There is no doubt they will try again.

Sets Mark In Olympiad

MARTHA NORELIUS

Martha Norelius today for the second time in two Olympiads won the 400-meter free-style swimming championship for the United States and set a new, almost incredible record of 5:42 4-5 in defeating the fastest five women swimmers in the world and cutting her own record of last Saturday by 2 3-5 seconds. Josephine McKim, Homestead, was third.

Trains Hit; 9 Die

CHICAGO, Aug. 6.—(AP.)—Nine persons were killed and 12 seriously injured and many others slightly hurt in a double derailment of two Illinois Central Railroad trains about one mile north of Mounds, Ill., at 3:10 a. m. today, a statement issued at the offices of the general superintendent of the road said.

"Train No. 16, the Chicashaw, northbound between Memphis and St. Louis, in charge of Conductor Whalin and Engineer Abel, struck a cast iron pipe 24 inches in diameter by 20 feet in length," the statement said.

"The pipe struck, the south track and threw it out just as the No. 3, Chicago to New Orleans Limited, in charge of Conductor Reeder and Engineer Banks, passed.

RELIEF TRAINS RUSHED

"The engine and 10 cars of No. 3 were derailed. The derailed cars struck the Chickashaw while it was standing still, resulting in derailment of seven cars.

"Nine passengers on No. 3 were killed. Twelve passengers on both trains were seriously injured.

"Relief trains were dispatched to Mounds from Carbondale and Cairo, Ill."

Officials of the Illinois Central offices here left for the scene of the wreck at 9 a. m.

200 INJURED

MOUNDS, Ill., Aug. 6.—Delmer Green, Illinois Central telegraph operator here, estimated eight passengers were killed and 200 injured, between 25 and 30 serious, when southbound Illinois Central train No. 3 sideswiped northbound train No. 16, one and one-half miles north of here early today.

The operator said four or five cars were derailed. The dead and more seriously injured were taken in a special train to Cairo. An appeal for help was broadcast and a WEATHER—Showers this afternoon and probably tonight; Tuesday fair with slowly rising temperature.

SPECIAL ANNOUNCEMENT!

Beginning today, the Evening Sun-Telegraph gives its readers an additional daily feature—a Four-Page Color Comic Section.

KLINE UNDISTURBED BY SHAKEUP FURORE

MADISON, O., Aug. 6.—Away from the cares and the oppressive humidity of the city, Mayor Charles H. Kline refuses to be disturbed by the agitation stirred up by the drastic changes in the police bureau.

"It was not a shakeup," he replied in response to an inquiry. "Any organization requires change from time to time to produce its best efforts."

Soothed by the comforting breezes from Lake Erie, the Pittsburgh executive sat restfully on the veranda of his beautiful summer home. He made it clear that he is here for relaxation.

MAYOR CALLS HALT

"Political significance is attributed . . ." was leveled at his honor.

He raised a hand in his usual smiling manner.

"No politics," he declared emphatically.

That could be easily understood, with his week-end guest, Harrison Nesbit, president of the Bank of Pittsburgh, sitting nearby. The financier is prominent in national Democratic politics, and, of course, he and his host disagree on the next White House occupant.

"But, Mayor—"

"No buts," was the reply.

"Let me show you the Pittsburgh room!"

An inspection of that room, adorned in the Pittsburgh colors, gold and black, revealed further the excellent taste in the design and equipment of the summer capitol. A visitor catches the Pittsburgh spirit on approaching the house. The Pittsburgh colors are flying in the breeze with the national emblem.

"The municipal colors are flying when I am here," explained the Mayor.

GOLFING DUDE

He carries his sartorial excellence into the realm of sport. Attired in an attractive golf outfit, with gray knickers and black sweater and hose, the Mayor was a picture of health in the tan. He goes around in 90, not so bad on the splendid Madison course.

But he is here solely for relaxation, to play golf and swim in the lake. He is the gracious host, but firmly bans the subject of politics or police tribulations. He is glad to tell you how the beautiful grounds surrounding his home were planned

3 Die Due to Heat

Three fatalities and one prostration from the heat yesterday was followed by temporary relief today, but more hot weather is on the way. Showers late today are indicated in the official forecast and a comparatively cool night will result. Slowly rising temperature is predicted for tomorrow.

At 3 p. m. the official thermometer registered 82 degrees, against a record of 88 degrees at the same hour yesterday. The humidity today was 76. On account of the humidity, according to Forecaster W. S. Brotzman, little relief is felt from the heat.

Three drownings were reported yesterday, the victims seeking relief from the intense heat, according to the coroner. Clifford Lacock, 13, of 2813 Rockwood street, McKeesport, was drowned in the Youghiogheny River near his home, and Charles Piosaino, 8, of Liberty Borough, was drowned in the McKeesport municipal pool. The third victim was Charles Albee, 37, 939 Taylor avenue, Avalon, whose body was found in Big Sewickley Creek. There were no witnesses to the drowning.

Joseph Gunkel, 50, of 108 Brownsville avenue, is in a serious condition at the South Side Hospital. He was prostrated by the heat yesterday in the yards of the Keystone Lumber Company, South Seventeenth street.

MAY BUILD LANDING OVER ITS TRACKS

By GEORGE H. SNYDER.

Pittsburgh will have the benefits of an airplane landing field in the business district if investigations now being carried on by the Pennsylvania Railroad Company show the project to be feasible. Engineers have been considering the construction of a landing field over the new yards being built between Pike street and the Allegheny River as a result of a suggestion made to vice president E. P. Whiter, who is in charge of the $45,000,000 improvement program being carried out in Pittsburgh.

The distance between Pike street and the river varies from 600 to 800 feet, and as much length can be secured as is found desirable. A platform over the yards can be built which will give adequate facilities for the landing of light planes.

PROBLEMS FOR ENGINEERS

Several problems have to be considered by the engineers. The cost

To Seize 54 Booze Bonds

Bonding bootleggers is a precarious occupation, it was revealed today as District Attorney John D. Meyer filed precipes for the issuance of warrants to seize the personal property of the bondsmen and defendants in the cases where the bonds were forfeited or judgments entered.

Most of the warrants are on bootlegging cases.

Fifty-four defendants were named, and with the exception of two $500 bonds, the others were for $1,000, a total, with interest, of $25,201.50.

Seeks to Collect Childrens' Bills

Miss Grace L. Stokes, chief probation officer, Juvenile Court, today began a movement to collect more than $136,000 owed the county for the maintenance of dependent children. It is planned to hold parents who refuse to pay in contempt of court. Workhouse sentences loom for those who fail.

POLISH FLIERS DOWNED BY OIL BREAK; SAVED

International News Service.

OPORTO, Portugal, Aug. 6.—The Polish fliers, Maj. Louis Idzikowski and Casimir Kubala, rested here today preparatory to returning to Paris whence they started out at 12:49 a. m. (Pittsburgh daylight time) Friday, with high hopes of spanning the Atlantic Ocean, only to be forced to land in the ocean 38 hours later 80 miles south of Cape Finisterre, Spain.

The fliers were forced down by a break in a fuel tank. In landing the Marzalek Pilsudski was badly damaged, its wings breaking, but it remained afloat. Idzikowski and Kubala leaped into the sea and swam about until picked up by the German steamer Samos which sighted the plane almost immediately.

Kubala, interviewed in the Oporto Military Hospital, said after they had flown 21 hours the tube feeding the oil stopped working. The airmen decided to return to Europe.

Seventy miles off Cape Finisterre, westernmost point of Spain, they noticed additional damage. This caused the wings to collapse, they said, and the heavy sesquiplane plunged into the sea near the Samors. The wings broke and the plane was damaged in other respects.

While boarding the Samos, Kubala slipped and fell, breaking his spectacles and injuring his right forearm. He was treated at a hospital here after the Samos had brought both fliers to Lexioes, a

One of Eight Sea Flights Is Success

NEW YORK, Aug. 6.—(AP.)—Failure of the Marshal Pilsudski to reach its objective on its attempt to span the Atlantic yesterday revived memories of other daring projects in the last year.

Eight westward flights have been attempted since May 8, 1927, only one plane reaching this side of the ocean.

The Bremen fliers, Koehl, Fitzmaurice and Huenzfeld, the only crew to fly across, landed on the barren waste of Greenly Island April 13.

Capt. Frank T. Courtney and his crew were rescued after a forced landing in mid-ocean last week.

On August 18 last Bisticz and Edzard started in German planes. One was forced down in Germany, the other had to descend after flying 24 hours.

The fatal failures were:

May 8.—Charles Nungesser and Francois Coli, never sighted after leaving Paris.

August 31—Princess Lowenstein-Wortheim, Capt. Leslie Hamilton and Col. F. F. Minchin, left England in Fokker monoplane St. Raphael. Were never seen.

March 13, 1928—Capt. Walter H. G. Hinchliffe and Lady Elsie Mackay, left England for New York in Stinson monoplane Endeavour. Never reported.

HOOVER HAS SLIGHT LEAD IN 1ST STRAW VOTE RETURNS

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 6.—First returns are in!

And San Francisco's first registered voters to state their political preference in the Hearst newspapers' nation-wide straw vote have given a substantial majority to Herbert Hoover.

Yet a representative cross-section of the San Francisco electorate gives Alfred E. Smith a sizable vote in this pre-election scientific estimate of what the trend may be in the presidential balloting November 6.

An initial canvas carried on throughout the city's 13 assembly districts and ended Sunday yields these totals:

Hoover	5,839
Smith	5,097

By way of interesting comparison, those voters represented in the above totals who voted in the 1924 election were asked to state how they cast their ballots then. Here is the total result:

Coolidge	2,079
Davis	582

As explained in Sunday's Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph this is the launching of a new nation-wide straw vote planned by the Hearst newspapers.

Even in these first returns, the important part women will play in the election is strikingly illustrated. A preponderance—nearly two-thirds, in fact—of the first, and probably most interested votes are women. This is in spite of the fact that returns are sought equally among men and women.

Hoover's strength among the women is indicated in the figures. The Hoover voters in today's tabulation are: Male 1,966, and female 3,873, or nearly two women to every man.

This is a contrast with the 1924 vote, as given by the same persons when Coolidge received 1,175 of the male votes and only 904 of the female. Davis received 316 of the women's votes and only 264 of the men's.

Fliers in Storm Here

Buffeted about in a terrific thunderstorm when they attempted to land at Bettis Field, McKeesport, last night, Pilot Ernest C. Williams and Miss Stella Neily, made a night landing at the Hill Airport at Latrobe, after being carried off their course by the high wind. A perfect landing was made.

Williams, who gave his address as 304 Wood street, with Miss Neily, of Pittsburgh, as a passenger started from the Liberty Bell Airport, near Blairsville, en route to Bettis Field. When they neared the latter airport it was dark and raining hard. Unable to see they were whisked out of their course and then headed east.

VARE IS BETTER THAN AT ANY TIME SINCE STROKE

International News Service.

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., Aug. 6.—Attending physicians believe that Senator-elect William S. Vare, of Pennsylvania, who has been critically ill here following a stroke of paralysis last Wednesday, is on the road to recovery. He has recovered consciousness.

At the Vare summer home in Chelsea, near here, the following bulletin was issued early today by Dr. John J. Shaw:

"The patient is resting comfortably, after what the doctors consider a good day. His temperature returned to normal at 8 p. m., and was still normal at midnight. His general condition is improved, no complications having set in during the day and none being expected.

"Sunday was by far the best day the patient has had since his attack. He is resting peacefully, quietly, and suffering no pain.

"Although the patient is still a very sick man, the term 'critical condition' is now too strong. All indications point to more hope for recovery."

According to a bulletin issued by his physicians this morning his condition was better than it has been at any time since he was stricken and showed marked improvement in the last few hours.

He talked for half an hour this morning and was quoted as saying:

"I wish they would give me something to get me up out of here. I cannot get my strength back quick enough if I lie in bed."

Vare was able to raise his left arm and left leg, but has not as yet regained the ability to move his feet.

Voting Machine Tally Favors Smith Here

Straw balloting on The Sun-Telegraph voting machines came to a close Saturday after a six weeks' campaign throughout the Pittsburgh district in which voters exhibited keen interest in registering their preference between the two presidential candidates, Hoover and Smith. During the period almost 40,000 votes were cast on the machines introduced here for the first time. The results recorded on the machines Saturday follow:

Sun-Telegraph Want Ad Corner	Hoover.	Smith.
McKeesport	18	41

Braddock	40	35
Bridgeville	31	54

Mail vote	15,006	22,646

WESTMORELAND MINER, HURT BY SLATE, DIES

HEAT, STORM TAKE 9 MORE LIVES IN EAST

Down At Sea In Plane :-: How "Whale's" Crew Crossed Ocean :-: Rescued, Landed Here Today

ESCAPE

Capt. Frank T. Courtney, Britain's daring flier, and his companions are due to arrive in New York today, saved from an ocean that nearly took their lives when fire aboard the airplane, "Whale," forced it down in mid-Atlantic.

WHAT HAPPENED ASEA

Here the artist illustrates for you what happened to Courtney's flight, which started from Lisbon, Spain, and was delayed a month by motor troubles and unfavorable weather in the Azores. When the plane drifted in the Atlantic more than 100 miles, ships changed their courses in rescue races. The SS. Minnewaska, answering the "Whale's" wireless calls, "won" and carries the four men on to New York. All England is relieved since their rescue from the sea.

WELCOME!

And New York has another chance at its beloved welcoming, for it is prepared to cheer Courtney and his companions who prepared for the hop for almost a full year. This was the second attempt.

town near here. The Samos towed in the remains of the plane.

SIGHTED THREE TIMES

Tomorrow the aviators will return to Paris. Except for Kubala's slight injuries, they were none the worse for their near escape from death.

The fliers were sighted by ships three times on Friday during their flight. The first time they were sighted at 4:10 a. m., (Pittsburgh daylight time), off France, flying steadily on the projected course which was to have taken them over the Azores.

Then the Aztec, a Norwegian ship, sighted them at 10:40 p. m. (Pittsburgh daylight time) Friday, several hundred miles northeast of the Azores. This led to the belief that they had abandoned their plan to follow the Azores route.

About two and a half hours later, the British steamship Amakura sighted their plane still further northeast of the Azores, indicating that they were heading back for the European mainland. From then on until their forced landing at 12:45 p. m. (New York daylight time) Saturday, the plane was unsighted.

RETURN MYSTERY

Continued absence of reports of their whereabouts had resulted in fears for the safety of the fliers. It is not known whether they intentionally headed back for Europe because of mechanical trouble or lost their direction and decided to return after finding themselves off their course.

It is believed the Polish aviators covered sufficient distance to bring them about the entire way across the Atlantic if they had followed a true course.

Their's was the second flight in a week to come to grief because of a broken fuel pipe. Like Capt. Frank T. Courtney and his three companions, they were saved from a grim fate by the timely appearance of a steamship.

GIRL SEES SUITOR DIE IN PARACHUTE CRASH

International News Service.

LANSING, Mich., Aug. 6.—Orvill Heppenstall's last parachute jump at Pine Lake was scheduled tobe the most spectacular, and in celebration of the occasion, his sweetheart was among the spectators.

But his parachute failed to open 3,000 feet in the air and Heppenstall crashed to death, three blocks from the crowd that came to see him cut loose from one parachute to desecnd in a second contraption. His sweetheart swooned.

Heppenstall for the last five weeks had been making Sunday afternoon parachute jumps from a captive balloon. Twice previously he had fallen into the lake and had to be rescued, but last night the wind was toward the Lansing road and he felt jubilant that his final appearance would be a huge success.

When the first parachute opened the jerk apparently broke the rope connecting with the second parachute to which Heppenstall was hanging and disabled the smaller one.

The body will be sent to his home in Flint, where he lived with his mother.

and executed with the helpful advice of Attorney H. Fred Mercer, who has an estate and nursery a few miles west, or dilate on the superior qualities of the colts on Mr. Nesbit's Virginia farm. Mr. Nesbit retorts with the tale of how the mayor shot two 30-pound wild turkeys, placed them in a Pittsburgh storage house and was chagrined when he sent for them to grace a sumptuous repast and found they had degengrated into six-pounders of a particular tame variety.

But politics is "out."

OPEN HEARTHS RESUME

Idle for months, open hearth plant No. 1 of the Homestead Steel works today was put in operation. Four furnaces were started, and others of the 10 furnaces comprising the plant will be fired later, it was said. The continuous mill and No. 3 furnace were kept going Saturday and Sunday, a new departure at the Homestead plant, and in their operation merchants and workers see prosperity ahead.

HEAVY RAIN FLATTENS MERCER, VENANGO CORN

FRANKLIN, Pa., Aug. 6.—One and three-tenths inches of rain fell in this district yesterday and mowed down cornfields in Mercer and Venango counties. The storm had little effect on the heat. A high temperature of 91 was recorded.

ALIQUIPPA GIRL MISSING; GONE WEEK FROM HOME

ALIQUIPPA, PA., Aug. 6.—Search is being made for Marjorie Kennely, 17, of 329 Franklin avenue. She left home a week ago after drying the supper dishes, police say, and her family has had no trace of her since. She took no baggage. An uncle, James Fullard of Homestead, is leading the search.

Bremen Plane, Minus Pilots, At Quebec

QUEBEC, Aug. 6.—(AP.)—The monoplane Bremen in which Baron von Huenefeld, Maj. Fitzmaurice and Capt. Koehl made the first westward crossing of the Atlantic by air, has been brought here from Greenly Island, where the trans-Atlantic flight ended. It will be reassembled and placed on display at the Quebec exposition.

Dr. Louis Cuisinier, one of the first men to reach the Bremen's crew on the tip of Labrador, directed the transportation of the ship on the steamer North Shore. He said the Bremen would be shipped to Germany later in the year.

special train with nurses and doctors was sent from Carbondale.

Green said the wreck occurred when No. 3 struck an iron pipe and was derailed, sideswiping No. 16, which hal also struck an obstruction and stopped for an investigation. The pipe was supposed to have fallen from a train.

DESCRIBES CRASH

R. A. Moll, of Cairo, a passenger on No. 16, said the accident occurred at 3:12 a. m. The train struck a 10-inch sewer pipe, 16 feet long, which apparently had fallen from a freight car.

The engineer set the brakes and the train stopped with a jolt but no one was injured.

The pipe was thrown across the southbound tracks and before a flagman could be sent out, train No. 3 rushed along and struck the pipe.

The engine and 10 cars left the track and sideswiped No. 16, seven cars of which were derailed. Some of the cars were thrown diagonally across the rails while others were overturned on their sides.

"The lights went out," Moll said. "Passengers became frightened and began to shout. The dust and smoke were so thick that we almost choked. We broke out the windows and began helping the passengers in the other cars. Not many in our car were hurt."

An appeal was sent to Mounds for help. Three doctors reached the scene in an hour. Workers with acetylene torches cut into the coaches in search for bodies. Many cries of distress were heard from the wreckage.

Another northbound train arrived soon after the accident. Several cars were taken off and made into a special train to take the injured to Cairo. Several of the injured were reported to have died after they reached there.

HIGH RIVER HAMPERS SAND DREDGING WORK

MARTINS FERRY, O., Aug. 6.—Frequent rises in the Ohio River this year have handicapped sand and gravel diggers. Much time has been lost and as a result fewer barges of sand and gravel are passing Martins Ferry.

WIFE BEATEN TO DEATH, MATE TRAPS SUSPECT

LOS ANGELES, Aug. 6.—(AP.)—Solution of another violent murder case confronted the police today in the slaying of Mrs. Myrtle L. Mellus, 41, wealthy and socially prominent.

Her nude and battered body was found yesterday in a bedroom of the Mellus house, in a fashionable residence district. Leo (Pat) Kelly, 29, a suspect, was found groveling in a clothes closet on the first floor. He denied killing the woman, although he said he gave her a "terrible beating" police said. The death blow apparently was delivered by a beer bottle.

Discovery of the crime was reported by her husband, Frank Mellus, club man, and vice president of a wholesale concern, who returned home late from a day's fishing trip. The house was locked and he forced a door to gain entrance. Discovery of the suspect was made by police who overpowered Kelly when he attempted to escape.

Robbery was discarded as a motive when a jewel case, containing jewels the husband valued at $10,000 was found unmolested.

Police at first thought Kelly a maniac, but discarded that theory when it was learned through his mother that he had been friendly with Mrs. Mellus, and that his mother had warned him this friendship might "lead to trouble."

M'KEESPORTER SHOT BY BOY

DETROIT, Mich., Aug. 6.—Charles Domingo, 21, McoKesport, Pa., was accidentally shot and critically wounded today when a 5-year-old boy, Billy Cartwright, also of McKeesport, found a gun in the rear of an automobile and discharged it.

Domingo and Mr. and Mrs. John Cartwright, with the boy, came to Detroit Sunday to visit friends. Domingo was in the machine this morning, planning to go to another friend's house when the accident occurred. His condition was critical, hospital attendants said.

INDICTED IN DRY PROBE, NABBED

Indicted in May by the Federal grand jury which conducted a liquor conspiracy probe, Norman G. Teske, was taken into custody today when released from the United States Marine Hospital by Deputy United States Marshal E. A. Holden. He was taken to the Federal building to give bond.

The arrest of Teske, who had been in the hospital since before the probe was begun, reduced to 32 the number still missing of the 167 indicted.

PGH. FIRM LOW BIDDER FOR GREENE CO. BRIDGE

WAYNESBURG, Pa., Aug. 6.—The Pittsburgh Foundation Company, with a bid of $55,334.35, was the low bidder among seven firms for the construction of a new bridge to replace the present double bridge spanning Ten-Mile Creek between Waynesburg and Morrisville. The contract will be awarded this week.

H. T. ROSE, BASEBALL STAR, HEALER, DIES

FRANKLIN, Pa., Aug. 6.—Hiram Tyre Rose, 47, of Rouseville, who gained fame as a non-medical healer, died last night at his home. Once a skillful baseball pitcher, Rose later entered the grocery business and when his skill in treating nervous diseases became so widespread he gave up the grocery business.

FAILS TO COLLECT CASH, ENDS HIS LIFE WITH GUN

UNIONTOWN, Pa., Aug. 6.—Failure to collect a big debt, Paul Zoldak, 62, of York Run, shot and killed himself. Zoldak left a note naming his debtor and the amount of the debt. One of his five children, a boy of 4, discovered the body in an upstairs bedroom.

P. R. R. STUDIES AIRPORT

will have to be estimated in order to determine whether the plan will be commercially practicable. The problem of lighting the tracks below and of placing the supports so railroad operation will not be interfered with must also be worked out.

The landing field would not supplant the county airport, which will probably be located at some distance from the city in order to secure a large enough area of ground at a reasonable cost.

The downtown landing field would be an auxiliary to the regular airport. The large planes, such as 40-passenger Fokkers which are now being planned, and the large express-carrying planes would land at the county airport.

FOR LIGHTER PLANES

Lighter planes would carry passengers and mail to the main terminal. This would give Pittsburgh a facility not enjoyed by any other large city.

Even at points where air travel has been most advanced, the airports can only be reached by a 20-minute or half-hour ride by motor. The contemplated landing field would place the business district here within 5 or 10 minutes of the main port.

The time required for handling air mail would be reduced by about an hour. The new landing field would be within three minutes of the postoffice and the long haul by truck to the airport would be eliminated.

The combination of air and rail travel now being worked out would be aided by such a landing field. It would make Pittsburgh an ideal point for the change from plane to train, since the two terminals would be adjoining.

JOHN YOUNKINS, BUTLER OIL PIONEER, DIES

BUTLER, Pa., Aug. 6.—John Younkins, 80, oil operator and banker, died last night at his home here. He began in the oil business at Parkers Landing in 1869 and operated in Clarion and Butler counties. He was president of the Farmers National Bank when it merged with the Butler County National Bank a year ago.

NINE DIE IN EAST'S HOT WAVE

NEW YORK, Aug. 6.—(AP.)—The heat wave under which the Eastern states have been sweltering since last Thursday took nine lives yesterday before electrical and wind storms brough temporary relief and much damage to several sections, especially in Massachusetts.

Two died from the heat in New York, two in Philadelphia, one in Reading, Pa., one in Albany, N. Y. There were several drownings and many prostrations over the week-end.

The wind and electrical storms did the most damage in the Connecticut Valley near Springfield, Mass. The storm centered at Chicopee, where houses were unroofed, trees blown down and electric light and power service disrupted for several hours. Holyoke also was hard hit.

Paul Rader, a captain in the Salvation Army, was struck by lightning and killed as he was helping several small bathers out of the storm at Sharon, Mass.

TREE HITS AUTO

Four people were injured and three automobiles destroyed when a big tree was struck by lightning in New York and toppled over on them. The storm touched only the northern tip of the Metropolitan District and then swept on out over Long Island, where much damage was reported.

Residents of Beacon, N. Y., said yesterday's storm was the worst they had seen in 10 years. A storm at Albany, N. Y., which swept on over the central part of the state did little damage and relieved the heat.

'Youth Must Be Served' :-: Lad, Losing Arm, Philosophically Starts Life Anew :-: He Must Be a Lawyer

JACK COFFROTH

Jack Coffroth—he is only 9—is a philosopher since he lost one arm. Perhaps also a fatalist.

TREE

Recently, Jack fell from a tree; blood transfusions saved his life, but surgeons took the arm.

SMILES

He smiles. "I can be just as good a lawyer with one arm as two." Ancestors were barristers; he must be, too.

DEATH?

"It's like a death," says his mother, Mrs. John K. Coffroth, Bellevue.

ALL

"It had to be," Jack says. "You have 'most all of me."

DIFFERENTLY

And now, little Jack settles to change his whole life, do everything differently than ever before.

BLACKMER EXTRADITION ASKED

Jiggs Seeks Recipe :-: "Waiter, Corned Beef and Cabbage!" :-: Chefs Help

CORNED BEEF AND—

At the Chamber of Commerce restaurant the photographer asked for corned beef and cabbage and the waitress shouted, "Jiggs," to Chef Theodore Wiensch. This is "Jiggs Week," you know, and it is a favorite Chamber of Commerce dish.

BOIL IT

Wiensch says the sure way to prepare it properly is to boil it and boil it and boil it.

LEARNING

"The bride who makes good corned beef and cabbage gets a fine edge on married life," Chef Nicholas Tedesco, Hotel Kilkeary's Lafayette coffee shop, tells the waitresses. The girls each will send The Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph a 200-word letter on what they think of Jiggs and Maggie.

"ROLL YOUR OWN"

"The way to make the best corned beef and cabbage is to prepare your own beef," advises Chef Emanuel Zambelas, William Penn Hotel. He says the most fashionable people repeatedly call for this dish. For the best letters and recipes sen in care of this paper, valuable prizes will be awarded.

"BAH!"

Anybody can make this old dish, declares the Fort Pitt Hotel chef.

"OLD STUFF"

Emil Rieser, chef, Fort Pitt, was inclined to "high-hat" corn beef and cabbage until he remembered that it is Jiggs' favorite dish. Then he declared that he himself would write about his opinions of Jiggs and Maggie.

SURRENDER BLACKMER, U. S. ASKS FRANCE

PARIS, Aug. 6.—(AP.)—Formal demand for the extradition of Henry M. Blackmer, missing Teapot Dome witness wanted in Denver for perjury, was made 10 days ago by the American embassy, acting on instructions from the State Department.

The legal department of the French Foreign Office considered no action could be taken until the documents in the case had arrived and been examined.

These have now reached Paris. They were sent by a special messenger and have been transmitted to the Foreign Office. It was said there that a decision might be reached speedily.

Meantime, Blackmer will be kept under a sort of surveillance by the French authorities who are not disposed to arrest him until a decision is reached.

COLORADO ACTS

DENVER, Aug. 6.—(AP.)—Empowered to attempt extradition from the self-imposed exile in France of Henry M. Blackmer, a special attorney is en route there to press Colorado's claims for service on the missing key witness in the Teapot Dome case.

Richard C. Callen, United States marshal here, yesterday said that the attorney, whose identity he did not reveal, sailed last week with papers calling on the French government to apprehend the former head of the Mid-West Refining Company, and hold him for deliverance to a United States law officer.

Blackmer is wanted here on indictments charging perjury in connection with alleged failure to make proper income tax returns. A Federal grand jury brought the indictments June 15 following filing on June 4 of liens against his property in Denver and New York for a total of $8,498,935.78.

If the Attorney's mission is successful, Callen will go to France with a presidential warrant, calling for the oil man's return to the United States, he said.

He said perjury was an offense for which extradition proceedings may be instituted under existing Franco-American treaties, but that final decision in the case rested with France. Should that nation refuse to deliver Blackmer, the presidential warrant, which carries signatures of the President and Secretary of State Frank B. Kellogg, automatically lapses.

"Sending a special attorney to request Blackmer's delivery to me by the French puts the task of apprehending Blackmer on the French police," Callen said.

McQuillen, who was on his way to Europe with his father and a party of friends, was rescued when a boat was lowered from the liner. After his removal to the sick bay of the ship he slashed his wrists.

MALCOLM E. NICHOLS

MALCOLM E. NICHOLS, mayor of Boston, was born in Portland Me., May 8, 1876. Graduated from Harvard. Reporter and political editor. Member of Boston Common Council; Massachusetts House of Representatives, Senate. Fuel administrator, Boston, and United States collector of internal revenue at Boston. Has been mayor since 1925. Lives in Boston.

I am pleased to have the opportunity, as mayor of the City of Boston, to express a measure of my appreciation for the splendid accomplishments of the City of Pittsburgh as one of the greatest industrial communities in the commercial history of the world.

George Bancroft, celebrated American historian, upon his first visit to your honored city, declared that Pittsburgh was both "The Gateway of the West" and also "The Workshop of the World."

The marvelous development of the iron, steel, coal and coke industries has given to your city a production of these products that is the greatest ever achieved in the record of international commerce.

Your park system covering, as it does, an area of nearly 1,350 acres providing 15 miles of park driveways and the tremendous tonnage of your three rivers, which has reached in a yearly period over 30,000,000 tons, are indeed outstanding.

No finer system of practical education in the United States today can be found than that provided by the University of Pittsburgh, a university which has for its distinguished patron, the Honorable Andrew W. Mellon, Secretary of the Treasury of the United States, America's great fiscal representative.

ELEVATED

The new Boulevard of the Allies, to carry downtown-East End traffic swiftly into Schenley Park as a thoroughfare, is taking form. Here it crosses Forbes street, just above Brady.

TWO ROUTES

A little more than halfway up the hill to Craft avenue, the boulevard divides and the automobilist will have a choice of two routes, each over a bridge crossing Forbes street. The new boulevard crosses Forbes street, thusly, in three places in carrying the traffic stream over the Soho district.

CROSSINGS

Here are the two bridges that near Craft avenue carry the boulevard over Forbes street. Note the extremely large beams, the longest ever moved through Pittsburgh, used in their construction. This is looking down Forbes street from just below Craft avenue.

A man and a boy were killed by autos yesterday. The man was left dying in the street near his home after he was run down by a hit-runmotorist, who sped away.

The hit-and-run victim is Waldemar Dryssen, 58, of Kittanning Pike, Sharpsburg, chief mechanical engineer of the Blaw-Knox Company. He was found dead near his home by a neighbor. Glass from a broken headlight was found near the man's body.

The lad was returning home from a store at the time of the accident.

Mrs. Dora Boalo, 30, of 247 Meredith street, and her son, Leslie, 5, were cut and bruised last night when their machine, driven by Peter Boalo, the husband and father, collided with another automobile in Carson street, near Twenty-second street. Boalo and Frank Bakas, 20, of McKeesport, the other driver, were arrested.

WARN INSURANCE HEADS TO GIVE UP SECURITIES

ST. LOUIS, Aug. 6.—(AP.)—Roy C. Toombs and other officers of the International Life Insurance Company have been given a week in which to produce $3,500,000 in securities or face a recommendation of criminal action by eight insurance commissioners from different states, who are investigating the company.

Toombs, in Chicago, denied last night that there was any shortage or discrepancy in the affairs of his company, saying that the International Life is in "very splendid condition."

The report of the commissioners, made by Charles R. Detrick, California commissioner, said they were unable to find the securities and that Toombs had refused them access to his books when they called upon him in Chicago.

Toombs replied to this with a declaration that neither he nor any other officer of the company has received any report from either insurance examiners or the commissioners.

"I was in St. Louis during the last week," he said, "and conferred at length with friends and associates there. We have very capable vice presidents and other officials in St. Louis, in charge of the detail work of the International and I have every reason to believe that its affairs are being properly conducted.

"Despite many rumors which have come from sources unknown to me, I desire to reassure the policyholders and the stockholders of the company, as well as all its agency forces that their interests are being well protected and preserved and that there is no ground for alarm, or reason to give heed to any rumor which may come to them."

He is the father of 33 children and his grandchildren number 220. By his first wife, whom he divorced in 1886, when he was 70 years old, he was the father of 21 children, four of whom are living.

He was married a second time in 1887 and became the father of 12 children, 10 of whom are living.

Years ago he threw away his glasses and since then has read the daily papers without aid. He says he has used tobacco since 6 years of age, and smokes his pipe 15 of 20 times a day.

STAGE AND SCREEN ACTIVITIES DETAILED

Rambling Through Hollywood With Eye Alert for Stars

Hollywood Breathes Easier And Says "Bum Voyage" as Jim Tully Prepares to Quit

By REGINA CREWE

(Copyright, 1928, by King Features Syndicate, Inc.)

HOLLYWOOD, Aug. 6.

JIM TULLY, the red-headed trouble-raiser of Hollywood, plans to leave the film-folk alone awhile to enjoy the peace and quiet of their bucolic pastimes. The Hollywood harrower will soon leave us flat for an extended tour of Europe. En route he will drop in on king and kaiser. Mussolini shan't be slighted. And, of course, Jim will see the leaders of thought—Maxim Gorky and the rest. Oh, wouldn't I like to be among those present when he interviews George Bernard Shaw!

It is Tully's idea to write a series of biographical impressions of Europe's great men, more or less—probably less—after the manner of Emil Ludwig, latest of the famous life-story tellers. Meanwhile Hollywood sighs contentedly.

Virginia Valli has gone Columbia. Harry Cohn, shrewd chooser of talent, has signed her on the dotted line for the feminine lead in "The Street of Illusion," to be directed by Earle Kenton. Columbia stole a march on the competition in getting Virginia, for her services are much in demand at all studios.

The title of Jack Holt's latest Columbia picture has been changed from "Out of the Depths" to "Submarine." The new name, according to one of Mr. Cohn's bright young men, is considered as having more "epical" qualities. Met Jack in Columbia's studios while we both waited the termination of a story conference. The hero of many films inclined his head toward the door and smiled: "They must have reached climax, because they're all talking at once."

Columbia has more than performed its promise to turn out a big picture with Lya De Putti. It has been previewed twice in unfinished form, and received enthusiastic acclaim at each showing. The title at present is "The Scarlet Virgin," but Columbia is offering cash prizes for a better one. So maybe it will be changed.

Warner Brothers have signed H. B. Warner for "Stark Madness." H. B. is sitting prettier than ever now because of the "Squeakies." Dorothy Sebastian is the latest addition to the Garbo film, "A Woman of Affairs," at Metro. Ralph Ince will soon be speeding east pursuing Estelle Taylor right up to the stage door to fit in some talking sequences for "The Singapore Mutiny." John Darrow and Gardner James are going to give Ramon Novarro a hand in "Gold Braid." "The Pagan" is still scheduled after this one. Malcolm MacGregor is with Tiffany for the time being, while Marceline Day and Owen Moore are in "Stolen Love."

Fair exchange is no robbery, so as Paul Bern leaves Metro to go to Pathe—Cecil B. DeMille leaves Pathe to go to Metro. Perhaps this is giving Paul a bit the best of it for his fame doesn't yet equal that of the great DeMille. Yet, after all, he's several years younger. And (who can tell?) Maybe it will one day.

Mr. DeMille brings his entire personal staff with him, and will produce a series of "supers" for the Metro lion to roar about. All the DeMille films will be "big" ones. They will rank with "The Ten Commandments," "The King of Kings" and "The Godless Girl."

"Connie" Keefe has left Hollywood for another peek at the Lambs' Club and also to loll in an Atlantic City rolling chair. "Connie" has been cast as the juvenile lead in "The Cohens and Kellys in Atlantic City." Considering his name, you can guess whether he's a Cohen or a Kelly. The cast includes George Sydney, Vera Gordon, Kate Price and Mack Swain. Even the thought of that cast is enough to make the customers smile in anticipation of a loud-laugh comedy.

A remarkable situation has arisen with reference to "The Racket," vivid film of gangland. It is understood that 20 cities have sicked their boards of censors on the picture, and it is alleged that the action has been taken from purely political motives. Howard Hughes, president of Caddo Productions, which organization produced the thriller, has solicited the aid of Will H. Hays in combating the situation. Mr. Hughes is a very determined young man, and his ire is considerably aroused. If they're going to kick his dawg around, they'd better be prepared to show why.

What will they think of next? Conrad Nagel sat in his Hollywood home the other day and addressed an audience in Dallas, Tex. No, not by radio, just the good, old-fashioned telephone, with voice amplification at the other end. But radio does come in on the deal, for Nagel's telephoned words were picked up by a broadcasting company and sent skipping over wavelengths. Lionel Barrymore plans to do a similar good turn for the fans and the Boy Scouts by addressing an audience in South Bend, Ind.

Lionel, by the way, will appear in the next Norma Shearer picture. And so will Lewis Stone. It is "The Last of Mrs. Cheyney." The next will be "The Trial of Mary Dugan," and then "A Free Soul," a screen version of "A Best Seller."

PLAYS, PRESENT AND ON WAY

Among the plays in which Olive Meehan, who will be in the leading role of "The First Year," with the George Sharp Players in the Pitt this week, has appeared are "Two Fellows and a Girl," for George M. Cohan; "No Other Girl," an Erlanger show, and "Change," a William A. Brady production of last season.

Tonight the Nixon Players will present the comedy, "Meet the Wife," by Lynn Starling, with Marguerite Merrill and Harry Bannister playing the leading roles. "Meet the Wife" is proclaimed to be full of laughs.

Gus Forbes, popular character man with the George Sharp Players in the Pitt Theater, will have his second leading role in "Lightnin'", the play to be presented the week of August 13. His portrayal in "The Music Master," contained promise of an excellent performance in the role of "Lightnin' Bill," made famous by Frank Bacon.

Opening Monday night, August 13, the Nixon Players will present Irene Bordoni's song-play, "Little Miss Bluebeard," by Avery Hopwood, in the Nixon. Marguerite Merrill, the new leading woman, will have four songs.

ICE FUND $400 BEHIND 1927

Two contributions of $5 each help bring The Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph Milk and Ice Fund to a slightly higher level today. The fund now has reached a total of $1,241.85, and is still creeping slowly upward, but keeping about $400 behind last year's amount on August 6. The Milk and Ice Association's work is so vitally necessary to so many little ones that Pittsburgh should be glad to do all in its power to further it.

Today's donations include one of $5 sent in by Mrs. S. S. Bridgers, and a similar one in memory of John Davis Brittain. The babies must have milk and milk doesn't stay sweet very long without ice at any time—much less in mid-summer. Help these helpless little ones!

Previously reported	$1,231.85
In memory of John Davis Brittain	5.00
Mrs. S. S. Bridgers	5.00
	$1,241.85

Coney fur, specially treated in Germany, is featured of this individual coat worn by Ruth Taylor, Paramount screen player. The coat, which has six bands of German fur around its length and three bands around the sleeves, is the first of its kind in America. The fur is attached to gray kasha cloth.

WORKERS TO HAVE OUTING ON RIVER

Atlantic and Pacific Tea Company workers will hold their annual outing this evening on the excursion steamer Homer Smith. On Wednesday afternoon the usual reduced fare matinee will be held. Wednesday evening the German Beneficial Union will be on board.

BUGS BAER Says

THE writer is now an authority on the cure of sunburn and is able to give his astonishing discoveries to the world, not only free of charge, but also free of information.

ARTHUR "BUGS" BAER

We laid down on the beach last Sunday and fell asleep under the noonday sun with the result that when we awakened we discovered that some fairy godmother had turned us into a tomato-surprise.

The wife called in the doctor, who saw that we were too far gone to save. He advised the wife to put us on the stove and allow us to come to a slow boil.

He didn't bother with taking temperatures with a thermometer, we were past that stage.

Instead of using a thermometer, he put a tire gauge on our big toe. The gauge registered 300 pounds of steam pressure to the square toe.

Here are some of the famous cures we gathered in five days of suffering. We pass them on to posterity in the hope that suffering will become co-operative and blisters will bloom forever more.

Bert Wheeler, of Ziggy's Rio Rita, suggested a new cure called blisterine de luxe. You rub it all over your chassis with a curry comb.

W. C. Fields says his grandmother always used linseed oil and lime water and wrapped herself in a crazy quilt, which sounded more like an invitation to a masquerade party than a cure for sunburn.

George White gave us a bottle of extract of scratcho. He forgot to tell us whether to drink it or rub it in. By that time it was too late.

A nice old lady on the front porch said there was nothing like bi-carb of soda to cure sunburn. We made a paste of bi-carb and took a bath in it. It made us look like a shampoo that had escaped from a barber. The bi-carb has now hardened like plaster of paris but fails to stop the sunburn from fermenting beneath the wainscoting.

We have tried 62 home remedies with no results and have finally decided that the only cure is the one donated by Joe Frisco.

Frisco insists that the only cure for sunburn is an umbrella.

Jiggs, good-hearted Jiggs, always doing the wrong thing at the right time. OUR DAILY SHORT STORY

RETRIBUTION

By GERALD HUNT

AS a child, Aileen Crowell had been the target for the envy of her little playmates. Her doll had been the imported kind with "real" hair that curled, her dresses had had the widest lace flounces, and when her mother took her to the theater they always sat in a box.

When she was 20, she still retained her position as the center of her friends and acquaintances. It was always, "What Aileen thinks . . ." "What Aileen does . . ."

Those who were not too blinded by jealousy, and were therefore able to admire her, to a greater or less degree, according to their individual natures, considered it quite befitting and only to be expected that the end of her first season as a debutante should have as its culminating success, her brilliant betrothal to Frederick Patton, who was, admittedly, a dazzling "catch."

Aileen and Frederick did not bother to conceal the fact that they were headlong in love with each other. As they both were wealthy in their own right, gossips were denied the pleasure of proclaiming that he was marrying her for money, or that she was marrying him for that reason. Beauty—wealth—love—a girl with any one of these things can "get by." Aileen had them all, and in abundance.

"You're marvelous!" Frederick breathed in her ear, time after time, while they were dancing.

"Tell me something new," she would whisper back, saucily, "I know that."

As a wedding present, her parents, several months before she was to be married, gave her a graceful, light tan sport roadster of the latest model. She took the keenest delight in driving, and would only laugh at Frederick, who was himself a cautious driver, when he admonished her against reckless speeding. She loved to feel the wind whipping by her face, the effortless, sweetly monotonous whir-r-r of the motor.

"Listen, darling," he would plead, half amused at her daredevilry, half serious, "why not limit yourself to, say, 50 miles an hour? Don't you think, by using all your self-control, you could possibly do that?"

"Not a bit of it," she retorted. "Fifty?—Flivver's pace."

"But suppose—" Frederick could not finish the sentence. The thought in his mind was too harrowing.

"Suppose—" Aileen caught him up lightly, "suppose you make love to me, while you have the chance, instead of lecturing me on my chauffeuring."

A hostess, who was giving a dance at one of the large hotels, had, as many others, placed the names of Aileen and Frederick at the top of her guest list.

"I'm not awfully sure that I can make it, dearest," Frederick told Aileen apologetically, when they were discussing the invitation, "it happens that I have an important board meeting scheduled for that evening."

"But—a board meeting!" she protested. "That's a trifle. Postpone it."

"Inexpedient."

"Skip it."

"Might miss something."

"Then you have to go? Of course, I shan't care about the dance, if you aren't there." He saw that she was really disappointed.

"I could get away shortly after nine," he temporized. "And perhaps, if I explained to Mrs. Clayton—"

"Yes, do," she agreed.

The dinner preceding the dance was scheduled for seven o'clock. Instead of going in the limousine, Aileen announced to her mother that she would drive over in her roadster.

"But dear! How inconvenient!" Mrs. Crowell exclaimed.

"No." Aileen's eyes sparkled. "You see, Mums, I've got a plan. If I can do it, I'm going to slip away after 9, and go for Frederick. It would be a lark to surprise him, and see how angry he is."

Mrs. Crowell has learned that it did no good to protest against her daughter's whims. Aileen was always doing something unexpected; she had grown accustomed to this. But she did allow herself one cynical comment.

"I should think Frederick might be able to afford a taxi." Aileen only giggled.

It was a cool, starless night. Aileen felt a shiver of pleasure as the moist air struck her warm face. It was good to slip away from the crowd, the lights, the excitement . . . And it would be fun to have Frederick to herself for a few moments. With such an intensive calendar as theirs, they had to maneuver skillfully to be alone together.

As she drove faster and faster, she felt exhiliarated . . . almost entranced. It was like flying! She opened the throttle to the fullest extent, selecting side streets in order to avoid traffic.

Suddenly, skimming around a corner, something was registered on her consciousness that made her turn dizzy. A figure, looking in the opposite direction, stepped hurriedly from the curb. Aileen jammed on the brakes. But too late! There was a crash, one terrible, agonized scream, and then—utter silence, utter darkness.

"She'll get off with a fine," was the general comment, that invariably followed the discussion of the accident. It was soon learned that Crowell, Aileen's father, had engaged the most brilliant and successful young attorney in the city. "There won't be anything to it," everyone said.

But they had not seen Aileen. No one had seen her except her parents, her maid and Frederick.

Noticing how white she was, how drawn her face, her father, hoping, as usual, to make everything smooth for her feet, explained at length:

"Now there's no need to take on so much, child. We all know it was a nasty thing. But look how much worse it might have been! Aside from the few bruises and the shock, you weren't hurt at all. As for the girl"—the victim had been a girl of 14, one of eight brothers and sisters of a tenement family—"her people have been told we'll do everything possible for her. All her hospital bills will be paid, of course, and I've instructed my lawyer to offer any fair compensation."

Aileen did not answer. She hoped that her father would finish speaking and would go away. She did not hear what he was saying. There was nothing in her mind but the image of the girl as she lay unconscious.

"She'll never walk again. She'll never walk again. She'll never dance, like other girls. She'll never dance—dance—dance." The words beat a tattoo in Aileen's brain.

Ultimately the case reached the court.

Aileen stood before the judge, her eyes looking straight into his. She pronounced each word slowly, as if with a tremendous effort:

"If your honor pleases, I would like to act as my own attorney."

"You have the privilege." There was a note of surprise in the Judge's voice, though he tried to speak casually.

For an instant, Aileen's voice faltered. Then she began to speak, low, but very distinctly.

"There's nothing to excuse me. Nothing. I was driving at least 55 miles an hour. That is a conservative estimate. I had been to a dinner party and had had several glasses of wine. It would not be exaggerating to say that I was probably mildly intoxicated. I have no defense. There isn't any. The girl I injured will never walk again. I've tried not to be so sorry, but I am sorry. I'll be sorry all the rest of my life—for this horrible thing I've done. I want to have my punishment. I want you to make it just as severe as possible. I expect you to give me—just what I deserve."

She finished speakind. The Judge, officers, spectators were silent, as though a spell had been cast over them all.

"Of course, after this—" Aileen spoke matter-of-factly, as though remarking on the weather—"I'll give you your freedom, Frederick."

She made a movement to draw the engagement ring from her finger. He caught both her hands in his. His eyes were shining.

"Don't talk nonsense, when time's so precious, beloved," he whispered. "Why—I never knew the real you till now. And I love the real, better than the one I did know. Much, much better."

Aileen's eyes met his, bravely.

"You won't let me release you?"

"No. I'll be waiting—waiting until you come back to me."

PATRICIA PITT'S SPRIGHTLY COMMENT ON PITTSBURGH'S SOCIAL HAPPENINGS

Barrenness of Social Calendar for August, Prompts Leaders to Look to Early Fall Season

SOME folks might think that now, with the last month of summer here, social events in the city will be numerous in just a few weeks more. On the contrary, during the oppressively sultry days of August there will be even less to interest those who like weddings, and dances, and teas than there has been this summer.

Of course there will be fall weddings to think about, but of bridal parties and pre-nuptial entertainments one will hear little until September is here. For those yearning for social life right here in Pittsburgh, there's one comforting fact though—the season will open several weeks earlier than usual. For mid-September debut dates have been named already. Ordinarily, haven't you noticed, debuts come with November.

Before September comes there's little to interest one as far as society is concerned, except news of the colonists in summer society resorts.

ONE of the popular summer colonies may be found at Montauk Beach, Long Island. There the sea breezes are cool enough for hosts to enjoy giving large dinners. Norman Allderdice, son of the Taylor Allderdices, was one of 150 guests at a dinner given by George LeBoutillier, of New York, at his new home. The residence is situated on a hill, the highest point between Lake Montauk and Fort Pond Bay.

EVEN the little folks at the summer resorts have their social life, too. One of the outstanding events among the very, very young set at Watch Hill, R. I., last week was a party Mrs. Lewis F. Harder, of New York, gave to celebrate the fifth birthday of her son, John Harder. Among the little guests were some children who probably will in a few years be leaders in Pittsburgh society's younger set—Elaine Darlington, Samuel G. Rea, Jr., Genevieve Rea and Oliver Rea.

THE idea of racing in August may sound altogether too strenuous to one, but when the racing is done with a yacht and not with one's own legs there's a big difference, isn't there? Summer colonists at Ilesboro, Me., find yacht races the most attractive sport. On Thursday boats of the 17 and 12-foot classes will line up off Pendelton's Point for a race to end at Pumpkin Island. The yachtsmen will not stay at this isle of exceptional name for long. On Friday they will leave on a course to be laid out by Commodore Maitland Alexander. Last Saturday, Maitland Alexander, Jr., won the 17-foot class race. The trophy will be the commodore cup.

CANADA has become more popular than ever during the heat wave ushering in sultry August. The John B. Semples left by motor Saturday for the Dominion. The Semple family likes motoring, it seems. The junior John B. Semples will sail September first for England, you may have heard. They are planning to motor through many of the picturesque sections of the British Isles.

WHILE their parents are leaving, many newly-weds are just returning from honeymoons. The Murray Grimeses have just come back from Europe. They were married on June 26, you know. They will live in the home of Mrs. Grimes' parents, the H. H. Pattersons, who are at Bass Rocks. This winter the young Grimeses will be a welcome addition to the young married set, for both Mr. Grimes and his young bride, the former Virginia Corbus Patterson, are popular.

ANOTHER debutante-to-be who is out of town now is Helen Rebecca West, daughter of the Charles Howard Wests. She is the guest of Frances Eddy, a classmate at Dobbs Ferry, at the Eddy summer home at West Falmouth, Cape Cod.

MRS. RAYMOND C. SEVERANCE, of Sewickley, entertained Friday at a luncheon in honor of her mother, Mrs. James H. Dilley, of Cambridge, O., who has been spending some time with her.

MISS BEATRICE CORPENING will be maid of honor at the wedding of her sister, Miss Elma Corpening, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. O. E. Corpeing, of Fletcher, N. C., and Joseph H. Bingaman, son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank E. Bingaman, of Edgewood, which will be solemnized Thursday in Fletcher. Miss Lila Osborne, of Fletcher, will be her cousin's bridesmaid and the best man will be David Keen Parvin Bair, of Edgewood.

MR. AND MRS. JAMES J. M'CAGUE, of Twelfth avenue, Munhall, have made known the engagement of their daughter, Miss Mary McCague, to Charles O. Hoban, of Erie, son of Mr. and Mrs. P. J. Hoban, of Naples, N. Y.

SATURDAY is the date chosen by Miss Lillian G. Eyler, of Ridgeway street, Schenley Heights, for her marriage to George V. Best, of this city. The ceremony will be performed at 11:30 o'clock in the Church of the Ascension.

MRS. A. D. GATT, of this city, is among the Pittsburghers in Atlantic City. She is stopping at the Hotel Chelsea.

THE marriage of Miss Charlotte Hancock Brenneman, daughter of Park Rose Brenneman, of South Trenton avenue, Wilkinsburg, and Carl A. Meiter, son of Mr. and Mrs. George E. Meiter, of Salem, O., was solemnized Saturday night at 7:30 o'clock in the Second Presbyterian Church of Wilkinsburg, by the Rev. Dr. Hugh Smith.

The bride wore white moire taffeta with a tulle veil held with orange blossoms, and carried a shower of white roses and lillies of the valley. Miss Isabel Morrison, as maid of honor, wore orchid chiffon and carried yellow roses, while the bridesmaid, Miss Louise Patterson, wore green chiffon and carried pink roses. The flower girl, Evelyn Hoffman, of Connellsville, cousin of the bride, wore a frock of pink chiffon and carried a Colonial bouquet of pink roses and blue delphinium. Orlan Stanley, of Salem, was best man, and the ushers included William Meiter, of Salem; George Delo, of Edgewood; Guthrie Meyer and Philip Hale, of Pittsburgh. Miss Helen Hood sang.

A dinner and reception followed the ceremony in the Edgewood Club, with covers laid for 12 at the bridal table. Mr. and Mrs. Meiter have left for an extensive motor trip in the East and North, and after September 1 will be at home in South Trenton avenue.

MISS MARGARET MACBETH, of Homestead Park, entertained at bridge at the Morrowfield Thursday afternoon in honor of Miss Grace Welsh, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Welsh, of Homestead Park, whose marriage to Robert Kinsley Shafer, of Cincinnati, will be solemnized tomorrow. Sharing honors with Miss Welsh was Mrs. Earl W. McKissock, of Bellevue, who was Miss Aimee Louise Dickson, of Sharpsville, before her marriage, June 30.

THE annual reunion and basket picnic of the Neely family will be held August 15 in the Bear Pit Cabin, Riverview Park. Dr. Frank Neely, of Perrysville avenue, is president of the organization.

MOSAIC CHAPTER, No. 50, O. E. S., will hold a card party Wednesday night in the Malta Temple. Mrs. Marie Slack is chairman.

Worthless Ring Costs Him $16, Maybe More

John Lesnick, 21, of Hazel street, has paid $16 for a ring worth less than 25 cents and may have much more to pay.

Saturday Lesnick parted with $6 for a ring, which he later learned was worth only a small part of the cost.

Yesterday Lesnick wandered along the Boulevard of the Allies in search of the man who had sold him the ring. He saw John Pantoni, of Broadway, McKees Rocks, whom he mistook for the peddler who had sold the ring. He slugged Pantoni, it is alleged, and was arrested. This morning Lesnick was ordered to pay $10 by Magistrate John Orie in Central Station and Pantoni put in a claim for a new hat and a doctor's bill.

CHEFS' TIPS ON JIGGS' DISH, CORNED BEEF AND —

Pittsburgh hotel and restaurant chefs gallantly will stand aside and let the housewives and domestic science students have their inning in contesting for the prizes for making corned beef and cabbage offered by Jiggs, your old friend in the comic strip, "Bringing Up Father." Through the International Feature Service and the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph, Jiggs will award some fine prizes and souvenirs for the best recipes. These are to be sent to the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph with a 200-word letter on "What I Think of Jiggs and Maggie."

While the chefs will not compete, they are willing, nevertheless, to pass along good tips to those newly-weds and other inexperienced cooks who would like to take one of the prizes. Emanuel Zambelas, who presides over the great kitchen of the William Penn Hotel and who has prepared the Jiggs dish for some of the most prominent people of this country and Europe, has one word of advice which he regards as all-important.

"CORN YOUR OWN"

"Corn your own corned beef," he says. "Then you will be sure to have it fresh and properly flavored."

"Boil it very, very slowly for four or five hours," says Nick Tedesco, who serves it at the Hotel Kilkeary. "It will be tough and unpalatable if you attempt to hurry."

"Don't let anybody 'high hat' you and say that this is a plebian dish," says Theodore Wiensch, master chef at the Chamber of Commerce restaurant. "Big business men like it, artists dote on it and epicures regard it with prime favor. Turkey for Thanksgiving, fish for Friday and corned beef and cabbage any other time is always a good watchword. But be sure you boil it and boil it and boil it."

PRIZES OFFERED

The prize for the best recipe is a Tiffany sterling silver carving set and a Tiffany-plate carving platter; the second national prize is a picnic lunch kit, and the third a crystal glass beverage set. Autographed photographs of George McManus, the cartoonist who draws Jiggs and Maggie, will be given for the best letters and recipes outside the three prize winners.

40 GUARDSMEN RECOVER AS QUIZ BEGINS

ERIE, Pa., Aug. 6.—Maj. Kenneth O. Momeyer announced today he would conduct an investigation tonight at the Erie armory to fix the responsibility for the distribution of spoiled meat sandwiches among members of G Company, One Hundred and Twelfth Infantry, who were stricken with poisoning while preparing to pass in review before National Guard officers and city and county officials Saturday. His findings will be sealed and they will be sent to the adjutant general's office at Harrisburg.

Only four members of G Company were at Erie hospitals late yesterday and it is said they will be discharged within a few days.

Of the 40 men stricken, Vincent Sabuski, 18, of 426 East Thirteenth street, is the most seriously ill, but St. Vincent Hospital attaches say he will recover.

The others at Hamot Hospital are Casper Korleko, Vincent J. Napio and Anthony Rupp.

It was said that upon their arrival here from Mt. Gretna, the men ate sandwiches which had been prepared last Thursday and which had spoiled because of lack in refrigeration.

BEARY INVESTIGATES.

CAMP HENDERSON, MT. GRETNA, Aug. 6—(AP.)—Brig. Gen. Frank Beary, in charge of the reservation, has ordered an investigation of the ptomaine poisoning of 40 soldiers of the Company G, One Hundred and Twelfth Infantry, of Erie. It is reported the men purchased sandwiches before leaving camp and carried them too long.

The Two Hundred and Thirteenth Coast Artillery, the command of Col. Clarence J. Smith, of Allentown, had more than 4,000 visitors in their area at Colebrook, and military police had difficulty in handling the machines of the visitors.

With a thermometer in the shade of an officer's tent registering 103 degrees, the Fifty-fifth Infantry brigade, commanded by Brig. Gen. Edward T. Martin, of Washington, Pa., yesterday experienced one of the hottest days it ever spent on the reservation here. As the result of the high temperature, the soldiers were permitted to spend the day at their leisure.

The child was brought safely to shore by the grandfather, Edward Seckman. Doctors said the heart attack had been induced by fright. The Seckmans were on a picnic.

NORTH SIDE "NEWSIE" WINS COLLEGE DEGREE

Charles A. Rohleder, Sun-Telegraph newsboy, with a stand at South Diamond and Federal streets, North Side, has paid his way through the University of Pittsburgh by selling papers, and will be graduated at the mid-summer commencement next Friday with the bachelor of arts degree. He completed the four-year course in three years.

Rohleder sells from 600 to 700 papers a day. He estimates that he sold 160,000 to pay for his college expenses. He has been a "newsie" since he was in the sixth grade at school. He also earns money by conducting a six-piece orchestra, the "North Side Radio Lites."

For years this has been his schedule: In the morning and until 1:30 p. m., school; from then until 7 p. m., selling papers; from 7 to 10 p. m., study in the North Side Carnegie Library; from then until 1 a. m., study or writing at his home, 213 Mendota street, and so to bed.

This routine is varied when his orchestra has engagements.

This is his recipe for getting things done:

"Arrange your work in regular periods and concentrate on it. If it were not for that," he declared, "I wouldn't accomplish much. When my mind gets foggy from overwork I quit and go to bed—or go out and order coffee and doughnuts."

Rohleder intends to study law—and to keep on selling the Sun-Telegraph until he is admitted to the bar.

HENRY F. MILLER

Both the manufacturers are independent concerns, devoted to the principle that the thing to strive for in making pianos is not mass production—the modern tendency—but the creation of a truly artistic musical instrument; that a fine piano needs the individual touch of genius, just as a Stradivari violin needed the personal attention of Stradivari himself.

BOY THOUGHT KIDNAPED ONLY SLEEPING ON TRAIN

David Honick, 12, of New Kensington, missing after a picnic at Keown Station yesterday and believed to have been kidnaped, turned up this morning while police and county detectives were combing the entire city and suburbs in their search. The boy had fallen asleep on an Allegheny Valley Railroad train and did not wake up until he reached the end of the run at Kittanning. There was no night train back to New Kensington and the conductor took the lad in charge, providing a comfortable bed until morning.

The boy's disappearance was reported to the missing persons bureau and detectives by his uncle, M. H. Katz, of 2018 Bedford avenue, and later today he broadcast the news of David's return. The boy, he said, had endeavored again and again to telephone to his home, but his family, frantic in the search, constantly used the line and it was reported "busy" to him at every call.

You Know Your Own 'Traffic Cop?'

FRIEND OF YOURS?

How many of Pittsburgh's "traffic cops" do you know? Can you call by name the chap nearest your home? The fellow you pass halfway to your office in the morning? The men who wave you through downtown streets? The Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph is introducing them to Pittsburgh. Here is one for today. His name tomorrow!

SATURDAY'S "TRAFFIC COP" WAS JOHN B. FOGARTY, MARRIED, 603 CURTIN STREET, WHO HAS SPENT 10 OF HIS 22 YEARS' SERVICE ON THE CORNER AT OLIVER AVENUE AND GRANT STREET.

SMITH AT DESK, ENDS OUTING

International News Service.

ALBANY, N. Y., Aug. 6.—Governor Al Smith returned to the executive mansion shortly before 1 o'clock this morning after an absence of nine days. After disposing of some state business the governor plans to settle down to work on the final draft of the speech he will deliver on the steps of the state capitol on August 22, when he formally accepts the presidential nomination.

During the latter part of the week the Governor expects to confer with U. S. Senator Thomas J. Walsh, of Montana, and possibly one or two farm leaders from the middle west.

George N. Peek, of Moline, Ill., spokesman for a million farmers of the middle west, who last week announced he would support the Democratic ticket because of Smith's stand on farm relief, is expected at the Capitol within the next 10 days. It is understood the Governor desires to have another talk with Peek before he finishes that part of his acceptance speech in which he will deal with the farm problem.

In a heavy rain and electrical storm, the Governor motored during the night from the state guard camp at Peekskill to the executive mansion. While crossing the Bear Mountain bridge the Governor's car scraped fenders with a machine operated by a woman.

ENDS HIS LIFE AS WIFE RETURNS FROM CHURCH

STEUBENVILLE, O., Aug. 6.—(AP.)—Ill health preventing regular work prompted the suicide yesterday of Louis Whitaker, 48, carpenter, according to Coroner A. L. Bell. Whitaker's wife heard a shot as she and her two children were returning from church and found him dead in a bedroom. He had shot himself with a shot gun.

Death Plot Denied by Clergy

MEXICO CITY, Aug. 6.—(AP.)—Bishop Miguel De La Mora in behalf of the Episcopal sub-committee today issued a signed statement rejecting the charge that the clergy was responsible for the murder of President-elect Alvaro Obregon.

He declared the fact that one Catholic priest and one nun were involved in the crime did not mean that the clergy as a body was responsible.

The statement asserted that it was publicly known that the Mother Superior Concepcion Acebeda de la Llata was mentally deranged and that several cases of insanity have been reported in her family. The Mother Superior was named by Jose de Leon Toral, the slayer, as having indirectly influenced him.

The Mother Superior will escape execution by reason of her sex, even if the jury grants the request of the prosecuting attorney when the case comes to trial. The attorney will ask for death sentences for both Toral and the abbess, but the Constitution forbids the execution of women and the sentence of the nun would be changed to 20 years' imprisonment.

FIRE AT BULGER BURNS CHURCH

WASHINGTON, Pa., Aug. 6.—(AP.)—St. Ann's Catholic Church at Bulger, near here, was destroyed by fire yesterday, shortly after the morning services. The blaze was believed to have been caused by altar draperies taking fire from lighted candles.

Firemen from Midway, McDonald, Oakdale and Burgettstown assisted in fighting the blaze, which destroyed the church and damaged four residences.

The congregation carried $10,000 insurancee.

TWO WOMEN FLY WITH LINDY

CURTISS FIELD, N. Y., Aug. 6.—One of the two women who arrived here last night in a Ryan Monoplane with Col. Charles A. Lindbergh was his mother, according to reports in circulation here. The members of the party were in seclusion today. They sped from the field in automobiles when a large crowd dashed for the plane to get a glimpse of the flying Colonel. Before landing he had been forced to taxi up and down the field several times to avoid hitting the spectators.

DRIVING INTOXICATED CHARGED TO WOMAN

NEW CASTLE, Pa., Aug. 6.—Two motorists arrested here face charges of operating vehicles while under the influence of liquor. NOW FOR LAW!

Charles A. Rohleder, Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph newsboy with the stand at South Diamond and Federal streets, North Side, will be graduated next Friday from University of Pittsburgh. 4 IN FAMILY DIE AT CROSSING

THREE RIVERS, Mich., Aug. 6.—(INS.)—A family of four—mother, father and two sons—was listed today among the dead from grade-crossing accidents. A New York Central train, en route from Elkhart, Ind., to Grand Rapids, struck the automobile a mile south of town.

The dead: Harold L. Titus, 61, Battle Creek, Mich. Mrs. Florence Titus, Harold Titus, Jr., 13; Donald Titus, 8.

The locomotive was so badly damaged that a second was sent to carry the passenger cars on to Grand Rapids.

The Titus family were on their way to spend a vacation at Mishawaka, Ind.

NET IN GIRL'S MURDER GRIPS PHILADELPHIAN

LOS ANGELES, Aug. 6.—(AP.)—With a maze of circumstantial evidence connecting Russell St. Clair Beitzel, of Philadelphia, with the murder in June of Miss Barbara Mauger, also of Philadelphia, police today believe their examination of the dead woman's clothing would clinch their case.

The clothing was en route from Phoenix, Ariz., where police believed Beitzel had shipped it after slaying the girl. The garments she wore the day she died might be contained in the bundle, investigators believed.

The nude body of the girl was found last week in a lonely spot in the hills above Hollywood. A bullet wound in the head caused death, although physicians declared there was indications the girl may have lived for three days after receiving that wound.

Beitzel, who brought Miss Mauger from Philadelphia several months ago, and lived with her here as husband and wife, stands formally charged with murder. He was arrested last Friday.

He has admitted quarreling with the deceased near the scene of the crime, but maintains he did not kill her. He told police she jumped from his car there, and disappeared.

Detectives located a pistol wrapped in towels in a desk used by Beitzel, and he admitted ownership. Yesterday a small boy found a box of cartridges for a gun of the same caliber near the scene of the killing. Beitzel admitted he went to that spot a day before Miss Mauger's disappearance, which he said was June 24, and practiced target shooting. The cartridge box bore the name of a store where Beitzel admitted buying ammunition for his practice.

In addition to murder charges, officers said charges of wife desertion, embezzlement and violation of the Mann act would be lodged against the suspect. Beitzel deserted his wife and two children in Philadelphia, and police have announced he confessed to embezzling money from his employers there before starting west with Miss Mauger.

JUVENILE DELINQUENTS' BOARD DEMANDED

A workhouse sentence looms for those who have failed to pay Juvenile Court for the maintenance of their dependent children. An audit of Juvenile Court recently completed showed that some 1,800 families in the county have ignored court orders and neglected or refused to pay for the maintenance of children placed under the jurisdiction of the court.

Over $136,000 for the keep of dependent children ordered paid by County Court judges has not been paid to date.

NEW SYSTEM STARTED

A conference was held today between Miss Grace L. Stokes, chief probation officer, Juvenile Court; County Controller Robert G. Woodside and Nevin Woodside, auditor to the controller. A new system was installed by the controller and an effort will be made to collect the money. A card index system will be kept and each month statements will be mailed to parents whose children are wards of the county.

PRISON WARNING

A warning printed in red ink informs the parents that failure to pay will be in contempt of court and they will be liable to imprisonment.

Controller Woodside will meet with County Court Judges Samuel J. McKim and Richard A. Kennedy probably tomorrow, and request that drastic action be taken against those who will not pay. The controller said that he would recommend that parents failing to meet their obligations be held in contempt of court and sentenced to the workhouse.

Accuse Ex-Convict Of Cheating Prison Pal

George Stephenson, former convict in the Western penitentiary, was held for court Saturday by the United States commissioner on a charge of using the mail in a scheme to defraud.

After serving his sentence, he was alleged to have written a letter to Sam Roth, a convict, proficient in making women's beaded handbags, using a fictitious name and ordering some handbags sent to an East Liberty address, agreeing to pay for them.

The order was filled by Roth, but according to a government officer, Roth was not paid. Stephenson was said to have sold four of the handbags for $10. Another man, a co-defendant with Stephenson, but not yet apprehended, was said to have sold a handbag for a bottle of whisky and to have made a present of another to a woman friend.

After more than 43 years' service in the nursing profession, Miss Ida Giles has resigned as head of Washington Hospital School for Nurses. She expects to leave shortly for the Pacific coast, where she may make her home permanently.

GIRL'S KIDNAPER HUNTED HERE

Pittsburgh police, with detectives of the entire country, have joined in the search for the kidnaper of Grace Budd, 10, of New York City, who disappeared nine weeks ago with an ex-convict known as "Frank Howard." The man is known under many aliases and was arrested here in the summer of 1923 under the name of "James M. Bradley," being identified also under the alias of "Dr. Albert Edward Corthell." He was a fugitive from the Florida state prison farm where he escaped after having been sentenced in March, 1922, when convicted on charges of forgery, the police say. The man was picked up here by Detective Frank Ferris and returned to the Florida authorities.

STREET SCENES: Three men helping to retreive a straw skimmer, whose owner calmly waits until it is returned to him. (It is seldom you ever have to chase your own hat. There are always plenty around eager for the chase). . . . The contented fruit peddler near the steps of the morgue, fanning himself and looking as if he's all caught up in his work. . . . The traffic officer at Grant and Liberty, whose semaphore is sometimes difficult to distinguish, putting hands on hips to register disgust over another motorist gone wrong. . . . A gang of telephone linemen, putting a pole in place. . . . They are young and healthy and are not always averse to flirting, if the girl is presentable. . . . At Fifth and Smithfield, that ever present line of persons waiting to meet their friends. It is the best-known corner in town. . . . A blind newsboy chiding his escort, a meek little girl. . . . The restaurant window wheat cake flipflopper. . . . He didn't miss one out of a total of 18. . . . A young lady, who doubtless spent considerable time making ready for the street, now giving her nose a plentiful daub of powder. . . . How did she forget that before she reached the street? Maybe she didn't. . . . A heart throb song from the sheet music store. . . . A group of musicians, taking a smoke during the rest period.

What is your favorite block in Pittsburgh? Ted writes in that his favorite "square" is in Sixth avenue, between Wood street and Smithfield street. Trinity's chimes awaken something deliciously melancholy in the pedestrian, he writes, and adds: "Only a few people parade that block in the evening, and with dusk coming on, the little old cemetery around the church takes on a gentle, ghost-like atmosphere. It is the most restful block in the downtown section."

IN THE West End the other night, according to Lieut. Edward Joseph Arthurs, a man in a sailor's uniform became obstreperous, and had to be pinched. While he was standing awaiting the hoosegow wagon along came another man in a sailor's uniform and he began a pleasant little fight with the arresting officer. Both sailors were put into jail.

Asked why he had interfered, the sailor said it was a code of the Navy that one sailor should always help another sailor out of trouble. What the second sailor said in the police cell, however, when Lieut. Arthurs told him that the first sailor was a phoney and was only posing as a gob, will not be set forth.

EAST LIBERTY people will tell you that theirs is the most metropolitan section of the city. Our East Liberty sleuth reports: "There you find doggy ice cream parlors, fancy restaurants, with S-shaped counters and little petting compartments. These have supplanted the Sheridan, Walsh's and Hammer's—and those other thirst emporiums which thrived and flourished in the wet old days. A changed East Liberty to one who saw it for the first time in 10 years just recently. It suggests New York to me more than any other section of Pittsburgh, because of the orange juice dipped from a cold tank, hidden in a white marble counter and where a brunette in white kills time by tossing nuts to her feathered friends—pigeons who risk being trampled upon to get the goodies. All this is reminiscent of Union Square, Madison Square and Central Park, New York, where the bird cranks and park loafers get the pigeons to roost on their shoulders, and pick at nuts held between the benefactors' lips. I wish to say our East Liberty juice joint Juno is easy to look at. The pavement is her front porch and park."

The beggar who was mentioned here as the one who advertises: "Not blind, but my eyes are none too good," sends word by fleet courier that he appreciated the mention and that he has a real good story when we get around to interview him. One-time partner of Buffalo Bill and expert broncho buster, the cow-puncher-fiddler says he has a real yarn. He may be a new Trader Horn for all we know. Operative T-82 has been put on the case and will report soon.

GERMAN WAR PILOT DIES TEACHING AMERICAN TO FLY

PLAINFIELD, N. J., Aug. 6.—(AP.)—A flier who survived four years of fighting with the German air forces during the World War fell to his death in a New Jersey field last night when his plane failed him. A pupil he was instructing also was killed.

The two men, Gustave Staiger, 30, of New York, veteran of the German army, and Colingwood Harris of Cranford, N. J., had taken off but a few minutes before from the Hadley air field, after telling their wives they were going for a short instruction flight.

Motorists along the main highway between Plainfield and Metuchen saw the slowly moving plane, its engine missing, flying at a low altitude. Then it suddenly nose dived, crashed into a field near the road, bounded high in the air and came down a tangled mass of wreckage.

Witnesses said one of the wings appeared to buckle, while the plane was still in the air. The ship was so badly demolished, however, that fliers believed it would be impossible to accurately check the cause of the crash.

Staiger entered the German Air Service at the outbreak of the war when he was only 16 years old. Discharged with a brilliant record at the close of hostilities he entered commercial aviation. He came to this country two years ago and since had been actively engaged in flying. His wife said his body would be taken to Germany for burial.

Harris recently became interested in aviation. He was taking a lesson yesterday but the position of the bodies indicated Staiger had hold of the controls when the ship crashed.

Will Rogers Says

BEVERLY HILLS, CAL., Aug. 6.

Just flew down from the Bohemian Grove.

Hoover didn't show up at their great show Saturday night. Some advisors came and he had to stay and listen to them. That must be the hardest part of being a candidate—to have to listen to their hooey.

Somebody must have taken the dessert away from our athletes in Holland. They are doing better.

If you ever said a prayer, say one for the return of Fred Stone to the stage. He has given more people real, clean, wholesome laughs than any man that ever stepped on our stage.

What a character of a man he is! To see him is to admire him. To know him is to love him.

Yours, WILL ROGERS.

How To Be Beautiful by Maria Jeritza

Neat Ankles.

SURELY, pretty ankles never appear to better advantage than they do in this era of short skirts and abbrevietad bathing suits. Yet the modern feminine ankle is absolutely noncommittal as an indication of age or beauty.

MARIA JERITZA

The next time you ride in the subway or bus, if you glance discreetly at the rows of pretty, shapely, silk-shod ankles opposite you, then trace them to the faces above, you are likely to discover that the most demure, sedate ankles of all, resting close together, are those of lovely Miss Sixteen, while even more shapely ankles and feet far more daringly crossed, with a shorter skirt, may belong to a person whose face is that of "Grandma," despite massaged wrinkles and obvious makeup.

After all, the only conspicuous ankles are the few that are fat or scrawny, swollen or ill-fitted to hosiery. So far as fit is concerned, if your ankles are inclined to overslenderness, I suggest that in buying silk stockings you ask for the slender-ankle variety. Many manufacturers nowadays make stockings especially designed for unusually thin ankles.

Is your beauty problem swollen ankles? This may also be a health problem calling for the services of a physician. But if your health is all it should be, the chances are your ankles swell only when your pumpstraps are just a bit too tight or your shoes are not properly fitted, throwing all the weight on your ankles and insteps.

Or it may be that you stand long hours each day, straining the muscles of your feet and ankles, or try to hike or tramp over city pavements in French heels.

In that case, the moment you reach home, bathe both your feet and ankles in a basin of luke-warm water with several tablespoonfuls of table salt added. Dry them carefully, dash eau de cologne or witch hazel over them, let it dry on the skin and lie down and relax in your bare feet even only for a few moments.

When women discarded high shoes, wiseacres predicted that their ankles would spread, but no such result has followed.

In order to keep your ankles well exercised, walk three miles daily in sensible walking oxfords; dance, swim and practice such amusing exercises as the following: Jump lightly in the air about half a foot and land on your toes. Repeat this movement 20 times every morning before your bath.

HALF WIVES

Alan's Declaration of Love Is Interrupted by Rush Of Guests at Party

WHAT HAS GONE BEFORE:

Ione Farr, just out of high school, gets a position with Max Weimar's music publishing house, in New York. Her chum, Marie Farey, is engaged to Palmer Elliott, a young lawyer, and plans to marry him on a fifty-fifty basis. She is always holding up as a model Ione's sister, Jenepher, who is married, has a small son and holds a fine position in a smart New York shop. Benz, Weimar's office manager, takes Ione to Tin Pan alley, where she meets the famous song writer, Wolfie Speed, and persuades Antony Ros, a matinee idol, to use Speed's new song after Benz had failed. She goes on a picnic with Alan Blake, an accompanist for the Weimar concern, who shows his intense admiration for her, but Blake neglects her and she goes motoring with Benz, who asks her what marriage has to do with love, and later tells her he loves her.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY.

WHEN they stopped on Cedar road he sat quietly a moment, looking at her. "Goodnight, little bright one. Goodby till the next time."

And she smiled at him mistily—watched his lights swing down the hill.

There'd be no next time for them—ah, the pity of that! They'd rollicked together, played in such gleeful accord. But she'd never go out with him again—never!

And she felt the white clutch of loneliness as she stood there on the step; the chill of high, rosy hope dashed suddenly low.

The hope of Lanny's sunny friendship—a vivid, treasured thing grown quickly gray and cold. Now Eddie Benz. Adventure he offered; laughter, lightsome things. And his voice all athrob, eyes burning into hers!

Well—she had stepped out to meet life, and life had given her a glimpse of light and music—and had closed the door in her face. She sighed.

Yet long after she had accepted the closed door she kept thinking of Eddie Benz, feeling his nearness like a flame.

He sent for her early Monday; motioned her to close the door.

"You know I'm sorry? Why, I wouldn't hurt you—cause you a minute's pain. You're so lovely, Ione—swept me into that. I can't take the things back; they're all true, all I said. I won't do it again. Ah—forgiven?"

He smiled, held out his hand. She had a quick, warming sense of his big-hearted sincerity.

"Well—of course—"

"And we're going to be pals—yes? Good friends? But you'll see!"

He gave her some manuscript then and asked her to take it to the studios.

CHAPTER XII.

THE studios were garish in the early morning light. Grandeur all gone—marble walls only painted cement, fountain mute, air heavy with stale cigarets.

It gave her a shock of dismay. Later she was to learn that Broadway is like that. The play world, all a-shine late in the day, is dreary dull in the morning; slattern as a woman in a soiled kimono.

The manuscript was for Wolfie Speed; she found him pacing one of the bare rooms—going round and round—singing "da, da-da, da" unmusically, with a strained, absorbed look; a pianist was picking it out on the keys.

She said, "You're composing—oh?" And stood as before a miracle.

"C'm'n, girlie. 'Snothing—turn out six or seven a week. Only one or two accepted. Listen to this—it's a wow. Listen—"

He dropped into a trick of poignant phrasing that reminded her vaguely of other popular songs. It was tuneful and delicate and the words kept repeating, "I'm yours in my dreams."

"Lovely—how kind in you to let me hear it! Sure to be a hit—oh, yes! Will Mr. Ros sing it?"

He gave her a sharp glance. "Think you could get him? Good idea, what I mean. Tell you, I'm going to talk to Eddie."

She went out, stirred.

As she was passing an open door someone began to play "Only You," singing softly.

"And her eyes, they are blue,
And her heart, it beats true—
Only you, girl—only you!"

She turned and looked straight into the merry eyes of Alan Blake. "Going by without a hail and a farewell. Is that nice? Come on in and give a fellow a load of encouragement."

"But I didn't know you wanted encouragement." Her feet were taking her over to the piano; her thoughts rushed.

"Forget-me-not and wild rose, Blush always, sweet Ione. And how is the genial Tom and which day are we to follow the Lone Trail? Surely, I've hoped 'twould be soon."

She wanted to say, "Oh, yes, you've hoped 'would be soon!' And you hardly spoke to me. Weeks now, and you hardly saw me!" He played, lazily, the serenade Ros sang when he stood with his arm around her in the wings and whispered "You're sweet!"

It came to her suddenly how he felt. Jolly youngster, asking her to come and play. Not his fault if she had twisted things around and made herself believe he was dying for love. Girls were always doing those things; couldn't be pals without wanting to be sweethearts. She saw now; she'd not do it again!

"Oh, you must come soon." She could be casual like that; she could toss things off with a laugh. "We're having a little party Saturday—Hallowe'en. Or wouldn't you care for it? Kid games—it would be tiresome for you—"

"Now why do you say that? 'Course I'll love to come; want to see you again, angel-eyes."

A sudden earnestness about him. Well—but did she know how he felt?

The Hallowe'en party was an annual celebration at the Farr home.

Tom brought in great, golden pumpkins from the garden terrace up the hill; he hollowed them and cut eyes and a grinning mouth with a droll humor.

Candles were burned at dusk and the jack-o-lanterns placed on the veranda posts and around the big living and dining rooms for light.

Cardboard black cats sneaked here and there; a black and orange witch mounted her broomstick on the wall. There was a sheeted, terrifying ghost at the top of the stairs.

Everybody came, all a-chatter. Ione's high school chums; two or three of Jenepher's smart friends from the shop. Girls giving little screams at sight of the ghost; the men pretending to shiver, all fun and frolic.

She had gone down the steps to look for Lanny, guessing the train he would take; he was marching along with his lilt, swinging his hat. Now he caught both her hands; there was a vivid instant when he leaned over and said, "Ah, Frills!"

Proud as a princess she walked in beside him, introducing him to her friends. Hushed stir running over the girls—they thought him gorgeous! Who wouldn't? But he strolled out to the kitchen and began to talk with Tom.

Presently Janey sent him in with a tray of apples; they were to tell fortunes. Each peeled one, carefully, so the skin would come in a long, curling strip.

They took turns, then, standing in the middle of the floor and whirling the peeling three times around high overhead, letting it go with a snap. The letter it made when it fell would be the initial of the future loved one.

They made a great fuss about it, reading meanings into the scrawling red curves Marie insisted that hers was a "P," though Pal Elliott said it looked like a minus sign. A shout went up when Ione threw a zero.

When a peeling slipped out of Alan's fingers, it fell in a perpendicular line almost at Ione's feet.

"Well!" he said, laughing. "Well!"

Red to the temples, she laughed in a high flippant tone. "See what you're in for, Mister man—so you see, now!"

They ducked for apples under the arbor at the back of the house—only the boys, though. The girls had their waves to think of. No use looking a fright and the evening just commencing, was there?

So they stood, shrieking, while Jenepher tied strong, young hands and gave broad shoulders a little push toward the tub where apples bobbed on the water.

"Isn't she a wonder, Jo? Doesn't seem a day older than us, and think of all she's done! Beautiful too—"

FROM time immemorial there has always been conflict between the Brunette and the Blonde, and the strife will continue as long as the two types exist. To some, the Blonde represents the highest type of beauty. Her lovely golden hair, her baby blue stare, her delicately tinted complexion and the languid temperament accompanying these qualities constitute all that is to be desired in womanhood. Then again, there are those who can't see a Blonde through a magnifying glass. For them the Brunette is the supreme type of beauty and charm. Her hair of midnight hue, her sparkling brown eyes, her olive complexion, her colorful magnetic temperament cannot be surpassed. And so any contest must necessarily end in a draw.

HOW TO KEEP WELL

by Royal S. Copeland M.D.
U. S. Senator from New York

Don't Use Serums Without Expert Aid.

EVERYBODY knows that the prominence of the front of the neck is called "Adam's Apple." I suppose this dates back to the time when the sinful act of the father of mankind resulted in his hasty swallowing of too large a morsel of the forbidden fruit. Perhaps the apple stuck in his throat and produced the prominence which has been given Adam's name since earliest days.

DR. COPELAND

Closely associated with this prominence is the thyroid gland, the largest of the "ductless glands." We do not know exactly what the ductless glands are for, but they produce secretions which appear to have vital effects upon the body and its various organs.

The ideal condition is to have these glands function just enough to have each one supply the needed quantity of secretion. If they furnish too much there may be over-activity of the heart and over-stimulation of the nervous system. If they do not supply the needed quantity, the heart action may be lowered and the nervous system become sluggish.

More and more we are coming to believe that the ductless glands are very important organs. The way they operate has much to do with the well-being and happiness of the individual.

Some of these glands have an effect upon the actual growth and development of the body. We go to the circus to see the giant or to see the dwarf. Both are persons who have abnormal ductless glands. In one case there has been such stimulation of growth that a giant has been produced. In the other case there has been a failure of secretion. Because of the lack of the stimulating substance, the cells of the body have not developed as they should. Instead of having normal growth the person thus affected remained small and dwarfed.

It may well be that the lack of proper operation of the ductless glands makes for stupidity and dullness of intellect. On the contrary, an unusual supply of the secretion may produce stimulation of the brain and nervous system and unusual alertness of mind.

One of the mysteries of the scientific world is hidden in this field. When medical men succeed in discovering the exact purpose of the ductless glands and how to control their activities, there will be a greater mastery of life and its functions than has ever before been achieved.

It is an interesting thing that each generation makes progress in the understanding of the laws of nature. The ductless glands offer the most fruitful field for present day scientific investigation. Sufficient progress has been made to teach us that, by the use of certain serums and extracts made from glandular tissue and substance, some serious diseases may be controlled or benefited.

I desire to say about these gland preparations that they should not be employed without the advice of a physician. In some instances they produce violent reactions and are so powerful anyway that it is necessary to use them with caution, and under skilled direction.

Answers to Health Queries.

Miss L. Q.—What causes beads of perspiration on the eyelids and eyebrows? This condition is present in any kind of weather.

A.—This is probably due to a nervous condition—build up the general health so that the nervous system will benefit. Excessive perspiration is due to nerve stimulation.

K. K. Q.—How often should a person wash the hair?

2.—I have been advised to avoid all sweets—would a little ice cream or orange ice be harmful?

A.—About once every two weeks or 10 days should be sufficient, unless the scalp is unusually oily.

2.—Follow your doctor's instructions. He is familiar with your condition and would therefore be the one to advise you.

W. J. Q.—What causes soreness in the back and deep soreness in the muscles? Also have stomach trouble and headache.

2—What can I do to reduce?

A.—Very likely due to a rheumatic condition. First of all locate the source of infection. Your diet and elimination may be at fault since you are troubled with your stomach and have headaches. Correct the diet and avoid constipation.

2.—Restrict your diet in regard to sweets and starchy foods and have lots of outdoor exercise.

W. E.—Q. What can be done for itching piles?

A. Piles are usually due to chronic constipation. This condition must be overcome. The diet must be corrected and special treatment is necessary in order to cure.

Love's Embers

Absorbing Sequel to "Revelations of a Wife" By Adele Garrison

Lillian Manages to Get Noel Away From the Group.

AS Lillian recounted the various viands of our camp dinner, I distinctly saw a little ripple of distaste pass over Philip Veritzen's usually guarded face. But whether it was caused by her mention of the primitively prepared dishes or by her impudent assumption that age was compelling him to watch his digestion, I did not know. Probably both angles of her chatter annoyed him, I decided, as I noticed that he ate but sparingly of the dinner which left everybody else stuffed to satiety.

We always plan these camp dinners, which because of the primitive cookery must be leisurely, long-drawn-out affairs, with waits between dishes, so that the finish with coffee and little cakes and watermelon dessert comes at abount sundown. Then we find lounging places far enough away from the cooking to enable Katie and Jim to have their own supper and burn up the picnic dishes, and we rest delightfully, listening to the surf and watching the sunset over the ocean while the men enjoy their after-dinner cigars and cigarets.

It is the most perfect relaxation imaginable, and I generally wrap myself in a blanket and doze off for a little while when darkness settles down over the ocean and I no longer can watch the fascinating surges of surf toward the shore. But upon this evening I permitted myself no such indulgence. I had pormised Noel Veritzen that he should have his chance of a word alone with Mary, and as the twilight began to wane I caught his anxious glances in my direction and hoped that his father was not able to interpret them.

For several minutes I pondered how I was to manipulate my human chessmen so that I could accomplish my object without my employer's realizing what I was doing. At my first opportunity, and as a first move, I got a muttered word aside with Lillian.

"Keep young Jackson, Miss Lincoln and Mr. Veritzen in their present places," I said. "You can add Dicky to the collection if you wish, but he isn't so important. Of course, Mother Graham and Katherine will stick anyway, and I want the rest of the party."

"You shall have 'em, but first give me a chance to get Noel away among those sand dunes. Wait for my move."

I murmured an assent and waited patiently for nearly half an hour. Then her voice floated out lazily into the darkness:

"Noel, didn't I see your violin around here, somewhere?"

"Why, yes," the boy answered. "Mrs. Graham said we'd sing later in the evening and would need it as an accompaniment."

"Well, it's a solo I want now, my dear," she returned. "I'm in a most romantic mood—it doesn't happen to me only once in five years or so, and I want to hear music stealing out from somewhere far enough away that I can't locate the sound. Will you humor an old woman and take that blessed violin of yours up over that sand dune yonder and play some of my old favorites for me? Remember, the old-fashioned things, and don't be stingy."

"Why, I'd love to, Mrs. Underwood," the young violinist returned, while we all applauded her apparently spontaneous plan.

Ten minutes later there sounded the tremulous first notes of that haunting old love song, whose refrain runs, "Tell her I Love her so," and I wondered if that were one of Lillian's favorites, or if Noel had seized the opportunity to send a message to Mary.

MEDITATIONS of a MARRIED WOMAN

by HELEN ROWLAND

OUR OWN SWEET SEX

THE modern flapper might draw some sort of conclusion from the fact that Adam never took any sentimental interest in Eve, until she discovered modesty and doiled herself up in in a few clothes.

To be thoroughly up to Hoyle these days, a girl has to keep "a stiff upper lip" for business purposes—and a soft lower lip for kissing purposes.

There are no formal proposals of marriage any more; people just wake up to find themselves engaged—that is, the woman finds herself engaged and the man wakes up.

HELEN ROWLAND

According to a disillusioned husband, the worst thing about teaching a woman to drive is that you turn her from a helpless and admiring dependent into an exacting and sarcastic critic.

A "conservative woman" is one who gives up her long hair, her long skirts and her Victorian ideals so slowly and reluctantly, that she is nearly fifty before she becomes a full-fledged flapper.

No woman feels "financially depressed" nowadays, as long as the shop will let her charge accounts run, and there is enough credit at the garage to keep the car filled with gasoline.

No matter how firmly a woman's MIND is made up not to let a man make a fool of her, she never can tell when her heart will skid and tempt her to make a fool of herself.

A woman has a lot of respect for all her husband's "conclaves" and "conventions," until she happens to attend one, and discovers that the "morning sessions" are largely hangovers from the evening revelries.

Better marry a heartless man than one whose heart is so big that one love at a time simply won't fill it.

Love Sick Should Laugh, Not Die, Fay King Advises

THE KICK IN LOVE LETTERS IS NOT WHAT HE WRITES BUT THE WAY YOU READ IT!
DON'T TELL ME I ONCE STARVED AND WEPT OVER THAT GUY!
WE CAN ALL THINK BACK TO SOME BIRD WHO HAD US WORRIED, AND GET A BIG LAUGH NOW!
FAY KING

By FAY KING

NOTHING is sadder than when some love-sick sapling checks out via gun or gas!

Nothing any one can say or do will convince them now that the day will come when this unhappy love affair will be the laugh of his or her lifetime!

The real trouble with a lot of these unhappy first love affairs is that they are not as serious as they seem.

They read more into letters than is written. They believe more is meant than is said.

If they can just sidestep the suicide complex, the day will come when they look back at this bust as best bit of luck that ever came their way!

It won't be long before they will admit with the rest of us that unhappy first loves are last laughs, if you live through them!

Expedition Into Mysterious Antarctic Regions Calls For Much Planning

Farthest Point From Human Life

CHAPTER XXXVI.

OUR base, then, will probably be established on snow-covered ice. This will be about the same thing as camping on a stationary iceberg. It does not seem a practical thing, but I believe it is. Amundsen did it successfully. It will even be an advantage in one way because we can dig down in the ice and make ice rooms for some of our workshops and supplies.

There is no place where one can get so far from human life. Our base will be at least 2,300 miles from the nearest human dwelling.

We shall have in effect a small village. It must be a self-sustaining unit, capable of maintaining itself indefinitely without outside help, because if we should have to spend the Antarctic night, or if our ship should get injured in the ice, there is no telling how long we might have to stay down there. It is wise always to be prepared for such an emergency. I was a member of one expedition which came very near getting caught in the Arctic for the winter without sufficient food to last until summer.

We should, in case of an emergency, be able to supplement our food supply with seal and birds, which abound at certain times on the fringe of the Antarctic continent.

Equipment Planned

As soon as we arrive we shall begin sending out parties to kill seal to lay by for possible use during the winter months. This would be important as a scurvy preventative. There will never be any scurvy as long as there is plenty of fresh meat. We shall have four or five portable houses, and for heating and cooking purposes we shall use coal, gasoline and oil. It is very likely that we shall take an electric plant with us for lighting.

We expect to take with us at least 75 Eskimo dogs, which will be used to haul loads near the base and to assist in establishing sub-bases on the route to the South Pole.

Arthur T. Walden, of Wonalancet, New Hampshire, a veteran of the Arctic and a great dog-team leader, has trained a special dog team. The majority of the dogs, however, will probably be procured from Greenland or Northern Canada. In addition to the dogs we shall use, for transportation about the base, caterpillar tractors. This will be especially useful for hauling the plane around. We discovered on our North Pole expedition that it is extremely difficult to handle a great plane equipped with skis by hand alone.

Of course, we hope to finish the mission of our expedition during the Antarctic summer, which will last until about March 1. That would give us about two months for operations. I should say that chances of doing this would be about even. But I don't know. It is an unknown quantity. If we have to spend the Antarctic night, our ship will have to be sent back to New Zealand, or possibly to the States because it probably could not stand the winter ice.

Expect Sub-Bases

So much for the main base itself. We expect to put down several sub-bases towards the South Pole about 100 miles apart. The number of bases we can put down is another unknown quantity.

There are several reasons for doing this. First, because it will be impossible to predict the weather conditions that will exist on a flight from our main base to the South Pole, and the winds in that region may come up suddenly and blow violently, frequently with very thick snow; which would bring about a situation much worse than fog for the flier, because he would not only be blinded, as is the case in fog, but would also have a terrific wind at the same time.

With bases every 100 miles the flier would have a chance to land near one of these bases and survive the storm. In such a case, he would have to carry along some special apparatus and use some special methods to prevent the plane from being blown over.

In a forced landing in any kind of weather, within 500 miles from base, there would be a chance of getting back with bases down every 100 miles. Without them, there would be no chance, because (as has already been explained) there is no animal life that would enable one to procure food, as is the case in the Arctic. Then these bases could be used for flights to the right or left for scientific exploration.

Nothing Definite

For example, suppose we should establish our main base on the ice barrier near the Bay of Whales. Then our line of flight towards the pole would be on the very edge of the unknown. When we reached an altitude of 5,000 feet anywhere along this line of flight we should be looking into regions never before seen by a human being.

Probably we should be able to fly out in an easterly direction 100 miles or so with our mapping camera. We plan to do that. In that way we would be able to photograph a considerable unknown area, at the same time running a minimum risk from sudden violent gales. But no matter how carefully we might plan our expedition into this largely unknown region, it is impossible to say ahead of time exactly what can or cannot be done or exactly how far apart we shall be able to put our bases, or how far towards the pole.

The principal supplies we shall have at these bases will be food and fuel and repair material for sleds. Three methods will be employed to put them down—airplanes, dog teams and our air propeller sleds.

It is probable that the dog teams will play the largest part in this work.

Dog teams should supplement the airplane in getting minute scientific details.

On the final flight to the pole, the flying done after the last base is passed will be hazardous, of course, because should there be a forced landing with the plane out of commission, our ability to return to the nearest base would be very far from a certainty. In such an emergency we shall have to depend upon radio and the reserve planes. If our bases are far enough along we may be able to hike back to the nearest one.

But here is another unknown quantity. We shall take a kite with us in order to send messages back to the base and receive them. The Navy has already offered to assist with the radio work as much as the law will allow. We shall use on our plane a set similar to the one that did such fine work on our trans-Atlantic flight.

This, a regular Navy set modified for our use by W. E. Hansen and Hylan, very capable naval radio engineers, used a wave length of about 600 meters. It was Hansen who made the radio set we used on our North Pole expedition. We shall have also on the plane a small auxiliary high-frequency, short wave set of about 40 meters, with a storage battery or a hand crank generator so that we can get back to base in case we have to land on the ice.

The short wave, high-frequency sets are generally preferred in the Arctic, for they can carry great distances with small power and an aerial of a few feet in height.

Capt. S. C. Hooper, U. S. N., one of the greatest radio experts in the world, especially on radio equipment for planes, is giving the expedition the benefit of his expert advice and help.

Landing Treacherous

As the South Pole itself is on a plateau over 10,000 feet high, landing on it is going to be difficult, because it is likely to be very cold, but what is more important, the air at that height of nearly two miles has lost so much of its denseness that it will require more power to take the plane off the snow.

The landing speed also will be faster. It is clear that this matter must be worked out with the utmost care because it would be impossible to get back to base from that distance should the plane for any reason be unable to rise after landing. There are some planes that cannot even reach that altitude. Our plane will need a ceiling of twice that altitude.

This landing will be further complicated by the fact that we must have on board when we land about 500 gallons of gasoline and 1,000 pounds or so of emergency equipment. This weight, of course, will make the landing speed faster. We do not know whether we shall be able to land there, but we are extremely anxious to do so in order to take scientific observations.

Reaching the pole itself is only a part of the work to be done by our expedition. The total unknown region is an area of 4,600,000 square miles, the circumference of which area is about 9,000 sea miles, more than one-third of the distance around the world.

As the ice barrier has prevented ships from reaching the land, no one knows just where the land begins. Airplanes can fly over this ice pack with ease, where the ordinary ship would meet with certain disaster, but the flying would be hazardous in case of a forced landing.

It must not be thought that even one or two expeditions can disclose very much of the secrets of the Antarctic.

Will Carry Big Load

In the plane itself on the final dash, it is possible that we shall carry a small team of light dogs and a sled. The plane will be capable of carrying the necessary load. That is why we prefer a large plane for this work.

In addition to that equipment, there will be carried in the plane a primus stove, reindeer sleeping bag, two months' food supply, including pemmican (the great Arctic food), chocolate, tea and hardtack, together with dog food; also a special tent such as we carried on the North Pole flight, medical kit, skis, snowshoes, extra shoes and clothing, rifles, ammunition and hunting knives.

This equipment will be used in case of a forced landing, when we should have to hike back to base. I am not prepared to say just what chances we should have of getting back. That would depend, of course, on our distance from the coast line.

The Antarctic can be conquered because a permanent base can be established that will not float away, as would be the case when putting down bases on the moving ice fields of the frozen polar area.

Were it not possible to place these permanent bases, the frightful meteorological conditions would make the conquest of Antarctica by air well-nigh impossible.

How great it will be, looking down into tens of thousands of square miles of regions never before looked upon by a human being, so far as we know.

I must admit, too, that although the primary object of the expedition is scientific, it will be most gratifying if we succeed in planting the American flag at the South Pole—at the bottom of the world.

AMSTERDAM, Aug. 6.—(AP.)—The United States has captured the Olympic track and field championship for the ninth successive time in 32 years but only at the expense of the biggest blow to American foot racing prestige ever sustained on an international field.

This was almost the unanimous opinion, even among Americans themselves, as the blue ribbon features of the ninth Olympiad closed with France's Algerian, El Ouafi, wearing the marathon laurel wreath instead of Joie Ray and the bulk of the remaining running honors divided by Finland and the British empire.

Only the spectacular running of Ray Barbuti in the 400-meter flat race, in which the Yankees scored their only individual victory, and the trimuph of two American teams in record-breaking or record equaling relays yesterday saved the United States from complete route on the cinder path. The point margin by which America won the team title, 178 to Finland's 102, was gained chiefly on the brilliance of the field performers who won five events.

SCORE FEWER POINTS

Despite the decisiveness of the margin, the Americans scored 82 fewer points than they did four years ago, when the same scoring system prevailed, and won eight first places against 12 in 1924.

M'WEENEY, FUSSELL TO RESUME DUEL

By CHARLES J. DOYLE.

BROOKLYN, Aug. 6.—The opening game of the Pirates' series with the Brooklyn Robins was postponed here today because of wet grounds.

Douglas McWeeney of the Robins and Fred Fussell of the Pirates were slated to resume their duel, each having won one decision over the other, and the mound choices likely will stand for tomorrow.

The Pirates came over her last night after dropping an exhibition game with Trenton, 3-2, at Trenton, N. J. en route from Philadelphia, where they swept a four-game series with the Phillies.

return to Pittsburgh where on Thursday they will take on the Cardinals. The teams will also play off a postponed game on the following afternoon. These contests doubtless will be fought with much vigor and vim.

At Trenton yesterday, the home club put on some speed in the last two innings and slugged out a 3 to 2 win over the Buccos. Paul Ufema, the young hurler recently acquired from the Greensburg club of the Pennsylvania League hurled fine baseball for seven frames, but weakened in the eighth and ninth and lost out.

The Pirates got eight hits from the delivery of Chambers, the Trenton hurler. All were singles. L. Waner, Traynor and Brickell had two each. Trenton was limited to six. Four were given up by Ufema and the other two came with recruit Haze on the hill. A single, sacrifice and another single accounted for the winning run in the ninth inning.

ARAB WINS MARATHON; RAY'S TRY HEROIC

AMSTERDAM, Aug. 6.—(AP.)—If ever a marathon fight was gamely fought, Joie Ray, little star of the Illinois A. C. fought it yesterday.

Despite excruciating pain in his leg muscles during the last lap of the arduous journey he battled on, giving every ounce of strength within him, biting his lips and overcoming by sheer will power the handicap of twisted muscles. This superhuman effort showed, however as he reached the American dressing rooms in the Olympic stadium into which he staggered more dead than alive, after finishing fifth. He lay motionless for five minutes on the cot while his faithful rubber hovered over him like a mother over her babe, and Dr. G. M. Hammond anxiously took his pulse.

When he finally opened his eyes his first question, whispered in a tone hardly audible, was:

"What was my time?"

When informed it wasn't available yet and that he had better go to sleep, he replied: "Not until my time is in. Give it to me as soon as you have it, please."

He then fell into an apathetic state again for several minutes, but after he had been fed orange juice he summoned up enough energy to say:

"It was my leg muscles that got me. I was leading at the last control station when, soon thereafter, my muscles got twisted and I had a hard time finishing. Naturally I am disappointed I did not head the procession for I wanted in the worst way to see that flag go up the center pole, but the Frenchman got the better of the argument so there's nothing more to say."

ARAB APATHETIC

El Ouafi, little, brown, narrow-chested, spindle-legged Arab from Algeria and Morocco who came to the rescue of his mother country and captured the marathon, blue ribbon of the 1928 Olympic, for France after all her other sons had failed, sauntered into the dressing room after his victory breathing normally and with not so much as a single bead of perspiration showing on his face.

"The last 50 yards from the finish line to the dressing room were the hardest," he said, in his broken French to officials who crowded around him, hugging him en-

Martha Norelius Sets New World Mark

OLYMPIC SWIMMING STADIUM, AMSTERDAM, Aug. 6.—(AP.)—Martha Norelius, of New York, was recrowned queen of the mermaids of the world today when she captured the Olympic 400-meter free-style swimming championship for the second time in two Olympiads.

In defending her title, won in 1924, against five of the speediest girl swimmers in the world, the American ace shattered the world record established by herself only Saturday, covering the distance in the hitherto incredible time of five minutes, 42 and four-fifths seconds. This was two and three-fifths seconds faster than the mark she set in her first appearance in the Olympic pool in winning a preliminary heat two days ago.

Another American girl, Josephine McKim, of Homestead, Pa., was third, while the Dutch swimmer, Miss Braun, was second.

American men swimmers could do no better than third and fourth in their championship event today, the 1,500-meters free-style, as Arne Borg of Sweden won in 19 minutes 51 4-5 seconds, which also shattered the world's and Olympic records. Andrew Charlton of Australia, the 1924 champion, was second, with Clarence Crabbe of Honolulu third, and Ray Ruddy of New York, fourth.

UMPS SUGGEST RULE CHANGES

NEW YORK, Aug. 6.—(AP.)—At the first mid-summer meeting of umpires in the 50 years of National League history, arbiters of the senior major baseball circuit discussed knotty problems and made suggestions for improvements through rule changes to John A. Heydler, president of the league. The meeting was attended by all 11 members of the staff.

The umpires first discussed the present rule regarding home runs. A ball driven over an inside fence or other barrier is fair or foul according to where it leaves the playing field. One smashed over the outer barrier is fair or foul depending upon its position when it drops from view.

The umpires favored a single rule covering both situations—the present regulation regarding drives over inner barriers—but they agreed that no change be made until tall poles marking the end of fair territory could be erected at all parks.

It was decided hereafter to permit only one player of the side at bat to leave the bench in anticipation of his turn at the plate and to enforce more strictly the rule prohibiting players from talking with persons in the stands.

EAST LIBERTY MEET CARDED TOMORROW

A program packed full of athletic events will feature the second annual "East Liberty Day" in Highland park tomorrow under the auspices of the East Liberty Trade Association. Chairman Paul E. Taylor of the sports committee will be aided by 60 judges and field officials. Two championship events sanctioned by the A. A. U., the low board diving and canoe tilting contests, will be held along with other aquatic events in Carnegie Lake.

JOIE TO DO A TUNNEY

AMSTERDAM, Aug. 6.—Joie Ray, United States veteran, who finished fifth in the Olympic marathon race yesterday, will retire from running and seek a coaching job after competing in the marathon at the Irish National games at Dublin, August 15, he said today.

CHILLY SAUCE By CHILLY DOYLE

Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph Staff Correspondent.

BROOKLYN, Aug. 6.—Our Pirates collected 57 runs in the four games in Philly, but it would reflect a rather shallow form of wit and also constitute a falsehood to say the Quakers were pickled. In the first place Quakers do not become pickled.

Boots Grantham may have felt that he was back on the deserts of Arizona judging by the way he smacked the rocket around in Mr. Baker's bowl. George may be a bit shaky when the snow flies, but give him a sandstorm that fills his hair and teeth with grit or a hot sun that sizzles and Boots can strut.

ANOTHER athlete who came out of the series covered with the grime and base hits was Glenn (Buckshot) Wright. Those folks who contend that Wright is the "punch" of the Pittsburgh attack would have been talking out loud had they seen the Missourian wallop the ball as Pittsburgh was promoting progress. The defensive play of the Spread Eagle star was something fine to behold.

But the Pirates are back in the big league again after their sojourn in Philadelphia and Trenton. Aside from the Phillies and Braves, the National League is overstocked with good ball clubs, the sixth-place Pirates being a much better aggregation than their notch in the standing indicates.

WITH the teams scrambling for positions of advantage in the back stretch the outlook for an exciting finish is most promising. The Cardinals appear to have won a significant victory in their long clash with the Giants yesterday, but the path of the Redbirds is apt to be rocky.

The American League seems to have stolen the show from the senior circuit on the merit of the play of the rampaging Athletics. For many reasons Connie Mack's club is a heavy favorite. The persistent efforts of the "A's" in the past 10 years or more have not escaped the average sport lover. Mack has had several chances to win on top of one of the longest last-place sieges on record.

BASEBALL interest is dull in some parts of the land, but if the Yankees and Athletics were to clash in Phillie this week the fans would storm the gates, thousands would be turned away and hundreds would climb the fences.

Burleigh Grimes stands a fair-to-middlin chance of annexing his twentieth victory before the Pirates get back to Pittsburgh on Thursday. Grimes will work one of the games of the impending series with the Dodgers. It is much to the credit of the hard working veteran to be able to chronicle that he has won more games and pitched more innings than any other major league performer.

CARDS, MACKS MAKE GAIN

By LES CONKLIN,
International News Service.

NEW YORK, Aug. 6.—With a lead of 6½ games, the St. Louis Cardinals are firmly installed in the driver's seat in the National League seepstakes today as the result of their 6-to-4 victory over the New York Giants in the first game of the important series between the two clubs here yesterday. The World's Champion Yankees were beaten, while the Athletics won, however, and New York's lead over Philadelphia in the American League race has been cut from 13½ to 3½ games in less than a month.

The Mackmen have rolled up an imposing record of 19 wins in their last 21 starts. The Yanks, with a shattered pitching staff, inferior catchers and a shaky infield, have won only five and lost nine. Yesterday young Ed Walsh of the White Sox beat the New Yorkers, 5 to 4, while Lefty Grove was striking out 11 men and yielding only three hits in pitching the Athletics to a 5-to-1 triumph over Detroit.

before. The failure of many of the Americans such as Lloyd Hahn, Frank Wykoff and Joie Ray to regain their home form, and the existence of some discord in the official family over various arrangements—these reasons all helped to explain the way the Americans fared. The opposition this time came not alone from Finland, but stronger than ever from the British empire and such hitherto obscure or missing contenders as Japan and Germany.

The marathon victory of the Arab, El Ouafi, who never won a big race before in his life, capped the climax of a succession of upsets which hit the United States and Germany, saw champions and record holders trimmed unceremoniously and developed such new sensations as the unheralded Percy Williams, double sprint winner.

JOIE RAY GAME

Ray, though beaten, finished as gamely on his muscle-tightened legs as he did at Boston several months ago. His record of finishing third, first and fifth in the only three competitive marathons of his career is outstanding.

Only two individual champions successfully defended their honors. Douglas Lowe, of England, in the 800 meters, and Bud Houser, of the United States, in the discus.

Titleholders beaten included Jackson Scholz, United States, in the 200 meters; Nurmi, in the 5,000; Ritola, in the 10,000 and steeplechase; F. Morgan Taylor, of the United States, in the 400 meter hurdles; Harold Osborn, of the United States, in the high jump; Dehart Hubbard, of the United States, in the broad jump; A. W. Winter, Australia, in the hop, step and jump, and Lee Barnes, United States, in the pole vault.

ARAB VICTOR

thusiastically. A fatalistic Arab, El Ouafi, never even smiled.

"I've seen worse weather in the Moroccan desert—it was rather cold today," said the Olympic winner, accustomed to temperatures around 100 in the shade when carrying dispatches for the French army in the war against Abd El Krim in 1926. Distances were not restricted to 26 miles 385 yards then.

El Ouafi did not appear to be interested in his own time, not even when he was told that he had run the second fastest marathon in history.

"That's enough," he told Lucien Avocat, expert masseur for the French bicycle riders, who had been giving him a rub down. The Arab jumped up, dressed hurriedly and sauntered out into the stadium grounds, appearing more as if he was about to start a marathon race than as one who had just finished one of the most gruelling in Olympic history.

"MY PERFECT FIGHT"

TOM HEENEY

GENE TUNNEY'S OWN STORY OF HIS FAREWELL RING APPEARANCE AGAINST TOM HEENEY.

by Gene Tunney

RETIRED HEAVYWEIGHT CHAMPION.

(COPYRIGHT, 1928, KING FEATURES SYNDICATE, INC.)

CHAPTER III.

IT WAS very important that I outguess Tom Heeney at every turn in our struggle at the Yankee Stadium. I had to hit outside his defense when he believed I was driving inside and inside when he thought my attack was coming outside.

It is exactly the same theory that Walter Johnson turned loose on the baseball world. It made the Washington star one of the greatest pitchers of all times and it has made many a champion within the ring.

For example, on a dark afternoon, Walter had blinding speed to throw at the opposition and he used almost nothing else. On bright days he had his speed to mix with dazzling curves. And in the final five years of his career the veteran depended almost entirely on a change of pace and still he defeated them. It was just a matter of outguessing the opponents, mixing brains and brawn, coupling the mind with the physical in just enough proportions to outguess the enemy.

USED CHANGE OF PACE.

A change of pace in the ring breaks up the other fellow's offense and thus makes your own defense more perfect because it has less to do. At the same time, it paves the way for your own defense.

Time after time it worked out perfectly and especially in one of the fundamental strategies of the game. Many times I have used the trick of appearing worried against a charging opponent, stepping around with puckered brows and fast-moving hands to create an appearance of uncertainty and nervousness.

This gave Heeney the impression that I was muddled, a bit mixed up in my plan and uncertain as to what to do next. Almost every time, as I feinted with a left, Tom would tear in, guard down a little, anxious to catch me in a moment of indecision. Almost every time I stepped in with the full weight of my body thrown behind a right hand punch to the head or the heart.

Almost every time the plunging weight of Heeney's 203½ pounds was added to the power of the blow as it landed full and clean on the spot I had intended to hit. The challenger never did solve that one.

WORKED ON DEMPSEY

It was just such a punch as this that opened that jagged slash in Jack Dempsey's forehead in the eighth round of our second match in Chicago. I tried it then on the former champion and as he rushed in the blow landed a trifle high. Only one knuckle, the first on my right hand, landed squarely on his forehead, but that one was enough to open a deep, zig-zag cut that stretched down to the inside edge of his left eyebrow and nearly put him on the floor.

Using this same strategy, in the eighth round, I hit Heeney the hardest punch I believe I ever directed at any man. My back was toward the ropes near a neutral corner as Tom charged. I smashed my right hand under his heart as he charged forward, and the impact must have sounded around the ringside. I could feel Heeney wilt under that smash. That punch was the beginning of the end.

TOM GAME TO END

There were many other terrific punches. In fact, after the first three rounds it seemed to me as if every punch I tried landed on the New Zealander with all the strength I could throw into the blows. At times I wondered what kept the man driving forward into such terrific punishment. It seemed almost unsportsmanlike to continue sending blows into him when all that was left as the fight wore on was the man's bulldog grit and fighting heart.

But the heavyweight championship of the world was at stake. It was my title hanging in the balance up there to be won until either Tom or I went down. I had to stick to my plan.

YANKEE ROWERS SURVIVE

SLOTEN, Holland, Aug. 6.—(P.)—Two victories and a row-over, the latter caused by the French four scratching, sent American oarsmen through the fourth day of the Olympic rowing regatta without casualties.

The United States double scullers scored a three-length win over the Austrian pair from the Wicking Linse Club, near Vienna, and a little later the American pair-oared combination with coxswain beat the English representatives from the Thames Rowing Club by a scant length in the hardest foughgt race of the day.

Manager Henry Penn Burke of the American crews, and coaches, were none too pleased at the escape of the Penn barge four without coxswain from racing today because they say the oarsmen need heavy workouts to keep them from becoming stale in a regatta which drags over too many days, according to the American view.

REPORT TEX SLIPPING

BIG LOSS STIRS UP GARDEN BOSSES

By DAVID J. WALSH.
International News Service.

NEW YORK, Aug. 6.—Tex Rickard, the man who established the resident record in connection with his Tunney-Heeney fight for giving until it hurt five miles away in Wall street, is sitting none too firmly in the saddle at Madison Square Garden, according to stealthy whispers on the backstairs today.

The same directors who objected so strenuously when Rickard brought back only about $400,000 from a $2,600,000 gate at Chicago last year have Rickard under the gun now, they say, with more than a fair chance of shearing him of some of his power, large stockholder though he may be.

An almost continuous chain of failures, preceding by several months the Tunney-Heeney bout, are said to have been added to the indictment against Rickard's management. The main item in this alleged document, perforce, is the $155,000 Rickard had admitted to losing on the recent heavyweight championship fight. Those in a position to know claim that Rickard has no means of computing his actual loss on this transaction.

FLYNN MAY RETURN

Several members of his organization, including Jess McMahon, the matchmaker, and Col. John Hammond, in charge of hockey, also are declared to have incurred the wrath of some members of the directorate. In McMahon's case there were rumors today that he might be supplanted by Leo P. Flynn. The latter once was matchmaker in everything but name at the old Garden further downtown.

Those were the days when Rickard was footloose to spend other men's money as might please his fancy, but those were the days, too, when success followed success, and, naturally, those other men were disinclined to be too inquisitive. Besides, Wall street had to be called in to float the new Garden bonds, and Wall street always wants to know what, when, why and how.

Rickard contrived last fall to placate those innocent men of the street who somehow couldn't be made to understand a deal whereby one of the principals got almost a million, another about a half million and a third principal, themselves, put up all the money, did all the work and received only about $400,000. That is, they chided him gently and told him not to let it happen again.

CHAPMAN IN CONTROL

Meantime, they arranged to have John Chapman, a cold, practical business man, sit in on all further proceedings as vice president of the corporation. Of course, Rickard didn't actually need Chapman and he proved it by making the Tunney-Heeney match.

As previously counseled, he didn't "let it happen again." No, indeed. Instead of bringing home a comparatively minor profit, he produced a comparatively large loss; in fact, the largest in the history of boxing promotion.

The word now is that Rickard will continue to conceive his matches—with reservations. He will continue to do business with the boxers—with reservations—and he will talk for publication with no reservations at all, as he is particularly apt at that kind of thing. But they also say that John Chapman will be there to see that he doesn't talk any more directors out of any more money if the steady hand of a conservative can help it.

ALEX PAPE DEAD

Pape was nationally known as a swimmer and diver 25 years ago and was associted with Tex Rickrd in staging the Jeffries-Johnson heavyweight fight at Reno in 1910.

his sportsmanship in stepping back and giving Tom Heeney a chance to recover when his left eye went bad in their fight, Gene Tunney told his chief second, Jimmy Bronson, who uttered the complimentary remarks: 'Sportsmanship goes with the championship.' That's a splendid line for all of our potential champions to remember.

TUNNEY HAS NOTHING ON NICK PERLICK, THE CLAIRTON ADONIS, WHO RETIRED AFTER ONE GOOD SEASON IN THE RING. NICK ALSO HAD A BOOK—OF POEMS.

"Donie Bush Threatens to Bench Sparky Adams," the headlines scream. That's the way the world goes. Everybody's always picking on the little fellows.

Have you heard the story about the fellow who had his equilibrium shot out from under him in Chicago? A tough town, that.

ANSWER TO QUERY—PLEASE DECIDE A BET. A. BET TUNNEY WOULD KNOCK OUT HEENEY. THE FIGHT WAS STOPPED. WHO WINS? ANSWER—WHAT ARE YOU TRYING TO DO, START AN ARGUMENT?

Jim Long, visiting the Grand Canyon on his vacation, postcards that it looks like the Yankee Stadium the night the fans stayed away to listen to the Tunney-Heeney fight via the ether. The act, it seems, was known as giving the fight the air.

What has become of the new soccer season?

Track meets still are with us, but they don't mean anything. We ran for Sweeney at Amsterdam.

ONLY TUNNEY'S FAMOUS FOOTWORK ENABLED HIM TO BEAT THE BELLEVUE BASEBALL CLUB TO RETIRING.

Tom Heeney. There's a game guy for you. First Tunney, and then marriage. All within one week, too.

Who can remember, in this hot weather, when everybody was all steamed up about what would happen to Pittsburgh's hockey franchise?

THIS WOULD SEEM TO BE AS GOOD A TIME AS ANY OTHER FOR THIS COLUMN TO RETIRE UNTIL ITS NEXT APPEARANCE.

WHAT'S ON THE AIR

THE Roxy Male Quartet will be one of the features of the program by Roxy and His Gang to be broadcast Monday at 7:30 p. m. The members of the quartet are John Keating, first tenor; John Young, second tenor; George Reardon, baritone, and Frederic Thoman, bass. The group has toured the United States in concerts, and has made a number of records in the laboratories of all the leading companies. The singers have been members of Roxy's Gang since the opening of the Roxy Theater. Other vocal artists, instrumental specialties and orchestral selections also will be heard during this period.

To break the regular routine of weekly parties staged by General Motors through WCAE, this week's entertainment will be in the form of a costume party with the Fisher Bodies Division as host. Festivities will begin as usual at 9:30 o'clock tonight. The costumes will be consistent with the nature of the program—a reproduction of the most colorful days of Merrie England. By word and music, both vocal and instrumental, the radio waves will carry a breath of the dangerous days that yet contained full share of fun and frolic to brighten still more the quaint settings in which the characters moved. Musical numbers to be heard will present the usual novelty orchestra under the direction of Joe Green.

The operatic version of Shakespeare's "Romeo and Juliet" will be performed in English, the language in which it was written, by the United Opera company through WJAS at 9 o'clock tonight. The music for this adaptation of Shakespeare's play is by Gounod, and the opera, which is in five acts, was first produced at the Theater Lyrique, Paris, April 27, 1867; in London, July 11, 1867, and appeared in America in 1868.

Business Getting Better. Money Sobers Speculation.

—By B. C. FORBES—

BUSINESS is doing better than the security market.

Stock quotations fell back somewhat last week. New financing was at an extraordinary low ebb, following the dullest month in recent times. Undigested securities are a factor. An 8 per cent call money rate had to be reckoned with at the month-end. Brokers loans showed an expansion of $75,000,000. Official figures revealed that gold exports last month reached almost $50,000,000.

Business developments, on the other hand, were most favorable.

THE general price level has moved up slightly. Crop prospects have improved and both sentiment and buying in agricultural states are more encouraging. Better growing conditions weakened cotton prices, but the 1928 farm income promises, at least at this stage, to exceed last year's. Returns on live stock are especially profitable.

THE latest railway freight figures revealed that the turn of the year brought a turn in the weekly showings. Each week since the beginning of July has produced some gain over the previous year, a condition not achieved during the first half of the year. Analysis of the figures brings out that the traffic is well diversified and that the improvement is not due to any abnormal developments in any one line.

BANK clearings continue to show substantial gains over last year, but they are a less useful yardstick in measuring general conditions, because they are so directly and greatly affected by stock speculation.

OLD timers derive much encouragement from the record being made by the steel industry. Orders are now reported in larger volume than deliveries. The year may bring new production records for the industry. However, the profit margin is not acceptable to the companies.

America's automobile industry continues to be the wonder of the world. Consumer buying is being maintained at a level beyond expectations, with no letup apparently within sight. Its prosperity must be credited in no small measure to the sleepless enterprise of leading manufacturers; they are constantly, through the exercise of able brains, succeeding in improving their cars, in appearance and quality, without adding to the cost.

NEXT to agriculture, building activities, grouped as a whole, constitute our most important industry. Notwithstanding the notable expansion in operations during the last five years, the demand for new structures is showing little or no sign of decreasing. Authorities declare that the 1928 total is likely to compare favorably with 1927.

One gratifying consequence has been a reduction in unemployment.

IN THE writer's opinion, recent events in the oil industry are of great importance. The modest reduction in stocks may not be carried much further immediately, but there are influences at work which are gradually bringing about substantial improvement in oil earnings. Advances in crude and refined are being announced at different points, and this upward trend may continue.

Incidentally, good oil stocks, as a group, have been neglected all along by the stock market's bullish manipulators so that their quotations look low in comparison with those for stocks which have been favored by speculators.

THERE are still weak spots in industry and business, buying is still of the hand-to-mouth order, and profit margins are not always reasonable. Yet the trend is, on the whole, in the right direction, with fairly definite indications that the current half of the year will make a better showing than the first half of this year and the second half of last year. An unlooked-for number of half-yearly corporation reports make showings which are not disappointing to stockholders. The majority of dividend changes are upwards, not downwards.

NEW YORK banks are being accused of crass selfishness in their efforts to curb the inflow of funds from corporations and individuals and institutions at home and abroad for day-to-day rental in Wall Street. In deciding to charge outside non-bank lenders 5 per cent of the proceeds for placing such loans and to raise the minimum accepted to $100,000, the banks make no pretense of altruism—nor when they announce higher interest allowances on time deposits.

But nobody familiar with Wall Street history can question for a moment the wisdom of doing everything legitimate to curb inordinate expansion in these irresponsible loans—irresponsible in the sense that, should any disturbance occur, the lenders would not feel under the slightest obligation to refrain from withdrawing their money, no matter how acutely disturbing the effect might be on securities.

Unless the steps taken have a real effect after they go into force on September 1, the stock market will harbor a new species of danger. And stock speculation is hazardous enough without adding another peril.

SCORE STOCKS REACH NEW HIGHS

NEW YORK, Aug. 6.—(AP.)—Responding to favorable trade news and a lowering of the call money rate to 6 per cent, stock prices continued to work upward in today's market. Nearly a score specialties were marked up to new high records, the gains ranging from 1 to 7½ points. Practically all important groups except the rails joined in the up-swing.

Banks called $10,000,000 in loans during the morning, but call money appeared to be in plentiful supply at the renewal figure of 6 per cent. Recent efforts on the part of bankers to curtail the volume of speculative credit have failed to dampen the bullish enthusiasm of pool operators although they have restricted the volume of trading on the part of small traders and investors who anticipate another "money squeeze" before the end of the month.

Motors were again active on reports of large mid-summer car sales. Dodge Brothers preferred and preferred certificates moved into new high ground and Chrysler converted an early loss into a gain of 2 points. Revival of activity and strength in General Motors, which crossed 190 for a gain of 3 points, led to reports that an extra dividend would be declared at Thursday's meeting of the board of directors.

Coppers and other non-ferrous metal shares attracted a larger following on reports of further trade improvement. New peak prices were recorded by Kennecott, Utah and International Nickel, while Greene Cananea ran up nearly 5 points. National Tea soared 15½ points to 282, duplicating the year's high, and Union Carbide, Sears Roebuck, American Ice, Coty and Otis Elevator were among the issues to break into new high ground.

Johns Manville was one of the few weak spots, selling down more than 4 points on profit-taking following the brisk advance last week.

SUGAR MARKET.

NEW YORK, Aug. 6.—The raw sugar market was quiet early today, but the undertone was steady and prices about unchanged. Holders were asking 4.11c for spots duty paid, with buyers offering 4.08c. No sales were reported.

Raw sugar futures opened at advances of 1 to 3 points on covering and some trade buying, probably inspired by the steadier tone to the spot market. Trading, however, was not active and after the early demand was satisfied, prices eased off. At midday the market was about net unchanged to 1 point higher.

Refined sugar was unchanged at 5.55c for fine granulated with a good withdrawal demand, but no new business reported.

STOCKS NARROW AND QUIET ON LOCAL EXCHANGE

ROUND TABLE of BUSINESS

Steel and Several Other Lines Enjoy Good Volume But Outlook Is Spotty.

By GEORGE H. SNYDER.

THE steel industry and several of the other important lines of business are enjoying a good volume, but the present outlook is spotty, in the opinion of A. C. Robinson, president of the Peoples Savings and Trust Company.

The Pittsburgh district is still feeling the depression in the coal industry. Many of the small stores and small manufacturers are not making profits. Firm money rates for some time are assured.

THE unprecedented wave of speculation is still under way. Mr. Robinson pointed out that, while a certain amount of speculation is perfectly legitimate, the present extent of it is unwise. Men who are not making satisfactory profits in their business are turning to the stock market to earn the difference. This distracts their attention from their regular pursuits and often has a retarding tendency on business.

"MOST young married people whom I know are speculating and expect to get rich that way," said Mr. Robinson. "The trouble is that people who once make a profit expect to keep on doing it forever."

SPECULATION is necessary to give investors a ready market to liquidate their holdings or to acquire new ones. The trader vastly increases the buying and selling facilities of the investor. A man who wishes to sell a listed stock does not have to negotiate for weeks to do it. He places an order with his broker, and it is accomplished in minutes. Such service is of great advantage to the financing of industry. The better prices usually realized by listed stocks as compared with unlisted ones are evidence of this.

BUT speculation, while it is an aid to the investor and gives him a day to day barometer of what his stocks are considered to be worth, does not create new wealth. You or I may make money from it but the world is no better off for our having done it. It is not richer as it would be had we raised some crops, dug some coal or made something useful from raw materials. Of course if a stock advances because of some actual increase in the value of the property behind it our profit is a reflection of an actual gain in wealth. But the mere trading in and out of stocks on Wall Street creates nothing new.

SPECULATION steps out of its natural role in economics and becomes pure gambling at times, such as the recent period of frenzied market activity. The stock market is speculative when its movements reflect the normal supply and demand of investment funds and the actual rise or fall in the value of the industries represented. The stock market is a gambling proposition when there is such a wave of public interest that stocks rise to levels unwarranted by present and future prospects. The speculator buys on the prospects of betterment in a company's earnings. The gambler buys in the hope that skyrocketing prices will bring other gamblers into the market to take his stock off his hands.

THE same comparisons can be found in real estate and in other activities. The sub-division and development of unimproved properties is a perfectly proper business. It is good speculation for a man to buy a lot a mile from a town in the hope that five years from now the city will grow enough to need it for residential or business purposes. It was gambling in the latter days of the Florida boom when property was bought at prices unwarranted by the wildest dreams, when it was brought in the belief that another buyer would appear tomorrow to take the land in the hope of selling it the next day. The final collapse undoubtedly slowed Florida's real growth.

Properly conducted speculation is an aid to business. Gambling takes individual initiative away from productive work.

NEW YORK CURB MARKET

NEW YORK, Aug. 6.—(AP.)—The curb market was irregular today, a few issues striding ahead in sympathy with trends on the stock exchange, while others eased as traders showed apprehension over the credit situation, with banks starting the week by calling $10,000,000.

Warner Brothers was a feature, leaping up 7 points to a new high as the A stock advanced on "the big board." Allowing for the accrued dividends on the A stock, the common is now selling around the same level. The buying is largely in expectation of recapitalization in the fall. Columbia Graphaphone was still bought heavily, gaining fractionally. Fox Theater A sagged.

Blumenthal, Bristol-Myers and National Rubber Machine touched new highs in small gains. Several automotive shares, including Safe T Stat, which was in good demand, Pines Winter Front A and Sparks Withington made good gains. Auburn, however, still sagged on decreased earnings, touching a new low at 100. Radio shares were active, Zenith increasing its gain and Spanish and General turning over in heavy volume. Bancitaly sagged nearly a point.

Mines were considerably firmer, Newmont gaining nearly 5 points. Noranda encountered profit-taking. Consolidated Copper was strong in sympathy with the strength of coppers on the stock exchange. Oils were generally steady, Paragon Refining touched a new high in a small turnover, while Humble equaled its previous record for the year in good demand. Public utilities were dull and irregular.

COTTON MARKET

NEW YORK, Aug. 6.—The cotton market opened steady today at a decline of 1 to 9 points under selling which appeared to be due to a private report placing the conditions of the crop at 72.4 and the indicated yield at 15,500,000 bales, considerably above the average of recent reports.

There was extensive selling of October at the start, but offerings of the later months were comparatively small, and selling on the larger private crop figures mentioned was probably restricted by another report placing the condition at only 67.1 and the indicated yield at 14,500,000 bales.

Offerings tapered off after the call and prices steadied up a few points on covering, the market showing rather nervous and irregular fluctuations during the first hour.

The market eased off gradually, selling growing more active toward midday. A favorable view of the weather map was probably a factor, while some southern selling was reported as well as reselling by recent buyers. December contracts worked off to 19.33c, with the general market showing net declines of about 21 to 26 points at midday.

According to a canvass today, 73 members of the New York Cotton Exchange are expecting a crop estimate of 14,742,000 bales on the average. The highest individual estimate by members was 15,500,000 and the lowest 13,900,000.

WIRE CO. LOSES RATE PROTEST

HARRISBURG, Aug. 6.—A complaint by the Nichols Wire Sheet and Hardware Company against the rates charged by the Pittsburgh and Lake Erie Railroad Company on wire shipments between Woodlawn and Monaca was dismissed today by the Public Service Commission.

The company, a Missouri corporation, alleged that the rate of 7 cents per 100 pounds in effect prior to December 24, 1927, and 6 cents per 100 pounds since that date, was unreasonable and unjust.

A table of rates submitted by the railroad company showed that similar rates were charged on the Pennsylvania Railroad between Rochester and Economy, New Brighton and Rochester and Beaver Falls and Rochester.

HAGERSTOWN YOUTH DROWNS IN POTOMAC

SHEPHERDSTOWN, W. Va., Aug. 6.—(AP.)—Donald Stover, 18, of Hagerstown, Md., was drowned while swimming in the Potomac river near here yesterday when he was unable to regain shore after swimming half way across the river. A companion was saved by fellow swimmers.

BROTHER OF PGH. MEN, CRAZED BY HEAT, DIES

JOHNSTOWN, Pa., Aug. 6.—Becoming violently insane, presumably from the heat, William Billings, 35, miner of Vintondale, was brought to Memorial Hospital, last night and died a half hour later. He leaves two brothers, John J. and W. J. Billings, of Pittsburgh.

Hair Greased, Bather Loses Life

CEDAR RAPIDS, Ia., Aug. 6.—(AP.)—Because he had smeared his hair with an oily preparation, Joe Coparil, 20, could not be rescued from drowning in the Cedar River yesterday. A life guard made two attempts to save Coparil, but was unable to hold onto the greased hair.

NEW YORK BOND MARKET

NEW YORK, Aug. 6.—(AP.)—Trading in the bond market was almost at a standstill today. Comparatively few issues were at all active, turnovers were small and price-changes narrow. Time money ruled at 6 per cent, with little demand. Calling of $10,000,000 in loans by banks probably added to general nervousness over the credit situation and served to restrict trading.

Rails showed the widest changes and an improved tone. Buffalo, Rochester and Pittsburgh convertible 4½s advanced more than a point on buying encouraged by improved earnings. New York Railways 6s, Southern Pacific 4½s and some New York transactions were active at fractionally higher levels.

The industrial group was dull, with trading in Dodge Brothers 6s insignificant, although the price improved slightly. Liquid Carbonic 6s were bought at a level 2 points higher and Fisk Rubber 8s advanced more than a point.

The foreign list was firmer, but here again trading was dull. U. S. government bonds showed some improvement.

SALESMEN.

THINK THIS OVER:
The following is a list of the accomplishments of some of our salesmen. This work was done without the aid of national advertising. Today we have an extensive program of advertising which is proving very helpful to our salesmen.
Mr. M. R. Hendrickson, a former preacher, in the month of March earned $1,748. In the month of May he earned $1,196.
Mr. F. Brannock, a former piano tuner, during March, April and May, his first three months in this business, earned $2,987.
Mr. D. C. Mackey, a former machinist, during his first six months in this business from December, 1927, to May, inclusive, 1928, earned $3,932.
Mr. C. C. Clayton, a former traveling drug salesman, during the last week in June earned $368.
Numbers of men are earning two and three times as much as they ever earned before.
This is truly a business of opportunity for experienced specialty salesmen and inexperienced men from all walks of life are also finding success with us and you need not invest one penny.

Let People Unite to Take Police From Politicians

The next big police "shake-up" should be one that would shake the Bureau of Police right out of the hands of politicians—out of the Department of Public Safety, so-called, out of control of the Mayor, and make it more responsive to real public service and less responsive to political manipulation, which reduces its efficiency and makes the organization appear as a joke to the public.

It has become evident that under present conditions a policeman can be little more than a tool of a political machine, usually that which happens to be in charge of the city government. He is not only expected to be an assured "payroll" voter on election day, but he is made an electioneering agency. In congested districts he is to browbeat small tradesmen into submission to the machine by stern enforcement of the law or to win his support by being blind to law infractions. If he is honest and does his duty against the wishes of the bosses he is "broken."

What a sorry spectacle! It is a system that makes for the easy growth of vice and crime and the easy collection of its fruits in graft.

There is no particular reason why the police should be directly attached to and responsible to the city administration. It is no more necessary than it is to have our school teachers so affiliated. You can imagine what our schools would be were the teaching force under the same handicap as the law enforcement arm. Properly administered, of course, both could be safely left to the city government. Just suggest, though, that the schools be turned over to the machinations of politicians! What a hoot of derision that would cause!

And yet the protection of our children, to say nothing of the safety of our own persons and property, is just as important as their education. They need to be protected from the petty thieves who filch their pennies in the sale of "pool" tickets. They need to be protected from the danger of the "dope" peddler and the panderer and other menaces, and a graft-ridden and politically-controlled police force either permits the growth of such things or does not check them as effectively as they should be.

To take the police out of the hands of politicians legislation will be necessary, but that is not an insurmountable obstacle. If our real leaders, business, industrial, professional men and women unite it can be done eventually. Not without a great fight, of course, for the politicians would not give up without a struggle, but it could be done. The administrative body could be a board of commissioners elected by the people or appointed by the courts or some similar central organization. Civil service should be for appointment only and removal made for just cause on charges made and proven.

Let us get ourselves set for a real police shakeup, and SHAKE THE POLITICIANS OUT!

New York Day by Day

NEW YORK, Aug. 6.—Diary of a modern Pepys: Up for a whopping breakfast, with William MacHarg, of calf brains in brown butter and a heaping dish of applesauce, and discussed among others Edwin Balmer, his brother-in-law and collaborator, who has become a magazine editor and likes the work.

To a park with my dog and ventured to stand in the doorway of a police motorcycle garage near the Sixty-sixth street entrance to look at the rows upon rows of machines. And a uniformed gentleman brusquely ordered me away, and I gave him a piece of my mind, of which I have little to spare.

Nor can I see why a uniform gives people the idea they may run the universe. So home, thinking up things I might have said. Worked awhile and in the evening to the St. Regis roof where the crowd was gay enough, but not geared to my mood. So to bed.

The "hoodoo" superstition is a fixation with many theatrical builders. There are several theaters on the Rialto which had every reason to be successes, but are not, and the promoters are firm in their conviction they are "hoodooed." The most conspicuous example of this witch burning abracadabra was the Century, which for years wallowed in ups and downs. It is one of the most beautifully appointed in the city, and while it has had brief moments of success, it has cost many sponsoring attractions there tidy sums.

A gentleman from a midwest city whose name is Jacob Lord has a swell method of commanding unusual attention in New York hotels. He registers as Lord, Jacob. The comma is almost invisible to the naked eye, but immediately the hotel is in a flutter. Special dishes are prepared and the entire personnel is all attention at his approach.

The pest hotel employes hate is the finger snapper. When he wants anything he snaps his fingers. It is effective, but their love for him is never anything more than platonic.

Apartment houses often change character almost over night. There is one in the Fifties where a writer lived. It was for years one of those sedate places with polite attendants and lights out by midnight. Then one evening he came home and found two cock-eyed chorus girls having a good "home and mother" cry in the hall. The next morning there was a raid on a speakeasy apartment adjoining, and two days later some Chicago boys engaged in a pistol battle on the floor below. In a week a respectable apartment had become a dump.

The sinister apartment house is reflected by its hall boy, usually a sullen and suspicious person who is often in league with criminals. The police have a long list of ex-convicts who seek such posts.

There is a lady, incidentally, who specializes in naming new apartment houses. She eliminates possibility of repetition, having a complete list of every building name in town. She is responsible for the la-de-da idea of calling buildings merely by street numbers. Her charge is $50 a name.

Fifty-seventh street has become New York's rue de la Paix. Since the thoroughfare was widened it ripples with smart perfume, jewelry and other glittering specialty shops, aside from its magnificent dressmaking establishments. Its doors are adorned by the gaudiest of uniformed flunkies, and curbs are lined with the finest motor cars. It is desolated until the shopping begins at 10 o'clock, but from then on until 5 in the evening it is one of New York's liveliest shopping centers.

"Ali," zips a telegram from Phoenix, Ariz., signed No Signature, "New York columnists are dubs and I send my contempt, pity, venom and worst wishes. Is there anything else I can send you?"

Nothing unless you could send a good dock-end to jump off.

Happy Mother; Fine Boy

All Mothers Will Like This Picture.

HAND IN HAND AS MOTHER AND SON SHOULD GO.

This picture will give pleasure to mothers whose deepest delight is the company and affection of their sons.

Here you see young Mr. M. J. C. Allom walking out on the cricket field at the university match between Oxford and Cambridge.

Mr. Allom is a fast bowler, a fine young man, proud of his mother, and not ashamed with other boys looking on to walk out to the cricket field holding his mother by the hand. In her honor he promptly "took two Oxford wickets."

This boy sets a good example to other boys. And his mother offers an important lesson to young girls.

The good example for boys was written long ago in the Ten Commandments, "Honor thy father and thy mother: that thy days may be long upon the land which the Lord thy God giveth thee."

The duty of boys is to honor their fathers and their mothers, MOTHERS ESPECIALLY. And a mother should be honored, loved, cared for, and protected not merely that "thy days may be long in the land." There should be no selfish motive, no hope for something in return—from Heaven here. A boy should love his mother in return for the t she has given him, in return for suffering that she at his birth.

The lesson for girls in this picture is GET MARRIED, have sons and daughters of your own.

Look at the mother in this picture and the fine boy who leads her by the hands. Do you think there is ANYTHING that, in her life, could take the place of that boy, anything on earth or in Heaven that could give greater happiness to a mother than to have a fine son devoted to her and proud of her? Not wealth or fashion, dresses or romance, or love affairs or anything else could compare with the greatest love in the world, that of a mother for her son.

Young ladies, see to it that you know what that love is before you die. Get married, have children, leave foolishness to others.

Garrett P. Serviss Says:

Saturn's Rings and Comets' Tails

"Has it ever been suggested that the rings around Saturn may have been the tail of a comet?—John Bell, New York."

YES, and it has also been suggested that the circular "craters" on the moon may have been coral-rings built up around mountain tips in ancient lunar seas, long since drawn away into the dry void of space. Such things are flights of the unbitted imagination, like Keats':

"—magic casements opening on the foam
Of perilous seats, in faery lands forlorn."

They are produced by too ready yielding to impressions made by accidental resemblance. The lunar crater rings have a certain superficial likeness to the forms of the coral islands of the Pacific Ocean. This resemblance suggests immediately the fascinating speculation that once on a time the moon was covered with seas, where broad plains now form the dark areas so plain to the naked eye, and that these lunar seas were dotted with coral islets and archipelagoes as enchanting as the island paradises that captivated the first circumnavigators of our own favored planet. But there is no real evidence to support such a conclusion. The coral islands of the moon are as purely imaginary as the human faces that fancy is able to picture in the clouds.

So, too, the idea that a comet may once have wrapped its blowing tail around the planet Saturn and then, tearing itself away, have left the severed tail as a souvenir ring to recall its visit, is based upon a quick fancy and a complete lack of information about the make-up of comets' tails as well as about the nature of Saturn's rings.

Yet this idea has seized upon the popular imagination to such a degree that it is often mentioned in conversation. To dissipate it one need go no further than to recall the fact that comets' tails are demonstrably less dense and tangible than the lightest wisp of cloud that faintly blurs the blue summer sky. The earth has plunged through the tail of a great comet more than once within scientific history, and the effect was too slight to be surely detected by the most careful observations. This happened with Halley's comet, which many readers will remember as having made a spectacular visit, after 76 years' absence, in 1910.

On the other hand, the rings of Saturn, though they are in some ways mysterious, are certainly composed of solid matter, which, however, is evidently broken up into immense swarms of particles, which individually can be of no great size and the greater part of which may be hardly larger than specks of dust or grains of sand. The rings are enormous in expanse—168,000 miles across exteriorly—but relatively very thin; yet their aggregate mass must be millions of times greater than that of the largest comet ever seen.

The form and structure of these rings and the manner in which they revolve around the planet are entirely inconsistent with any hypothesis ascribing their origin to any source outside the system of Saturn itself. Saturn no doubt begot them in the early stages of its planetary evolution, and an interesting question now is, as I have before pointed out, whether Saturn will eventually "devour" them, as the Saturn of Greek mythology devoured his children.

Serious Thought

IS IT your opinion that life is too short to spend any of it in serious thought?

You want to feel that the big thing in life is to get joy out of it, day by day, and all the time.

You take things as they come and so far you have been able to get along without any serious blows.

Because this is true, you think you are pursuing the right course.

Purposely, you avoid the hard and irksome things.

You would do without what concentrated thought would bring rather than make the effort.

But there are times in your life when you feel a lack, somewhere.

You know that others are getting more than you with your carefree habits and ways.

You blame luck, but you do not go deep enough to discover the reason.

It is your own lack of effort.

To throw up one's hands and get comfort from the philosophy of a "don't worry" slogan is not the way to advancement and progress.

The Rhyming Optimist

By ALINE MICHAELS

The Critic

HIS work seemed good. He labored long
To gain the brief applause of men,
From lips of thoughtless throng on throng
His name was heard, again, again.

They said he had the master's dower
And that his lightest touch revealed
Such matchless harmony and power
As only mastery can yield.

His fame waxed greater year by year,
New honors made his pathway bright;
He reaped rewards men hold most dear
And neared his long-desired delight.

Yet cold, aloof, one critic stood
And so he went unsatisfied,
Finding no other plaudits good;
His better self all praise denied.

Great Passages from the Bible

"Remember Now Thy Creator"

(Ecclesiastes 12: 1-7)

REMEMBER now thy Creator in the days of thy youth, while the evil days come not, nor the years draw nigh, when thou shalt say, I have no pleasure in them:

While the sun, or the light, or the moon, or the stars, be not darkened, nor the clouds return after the rain:

In the day when the keepers of the house shall tremble, and the strong men shall bow themselves, and the grinders cease because they are few, and those that look out of the windows be darkened,

And the doors shall be shut in the streets, when the sound of the grinding is low, and he shall rise up at the voice of the bird, and all the daughters of musick shall be brought low:

Also when they shall be afraid of that which is high, and fears shall be in the way, and the almond tree shall flourish, and the grasshopper shall be a burden, and desire shall fail: because man goeth to his long home, and the mourners go about the streets:

Or ever the silver cord be loosed, or the golden bowl be broken, or the pitcher be broken at the fountain, or the wheel broken at the cistern.

Then shall the dust return to the earth as it was: and the spirit shall return unto God who gave it.

Tales that are Told

Worst Story I Have Heard Today

By WILL ROGERS

WOMEN like to get compliments. I reckon every love-lorn department and advice to husbands' column has told you that. But that ain't all. They're bound to get compliments. If a woman's husband won't say nice things to her, why she'll generally manage to make somebody say them.

But there was a woman that was so hungry for a compliment that she just naturally stole one from her husband. He was saying all sorts of wise things in company, and telling all about what was the cause of this and that. So finally he says, "It's notorious that dumb men grab off all the prettiest women."

His wife blushed real pretty and said, "Why, you old flatterer, you're always saying nice things about me that way."

The Rhyme

A BUSINESS MAN was telling a friend that he was on the point of paying a visit to Glasgow.

"In that case," said the friend, "be sure to call on my friend Crummack. He's an awfully good fellow and he'll do you well. It's an easy name to remember. Crummack . . . stummick, see?"

Later the two met again.

"Yes," said the business man, "I had a fine time in Glasgow. My only regret is that I was so rushed I hadn't a chance to look up your friend Kelly."

A Budding Champion

BROWN, burdened with a bag of golf clubs, was trudging homewards when he was overtaken by a friend.

"Well," asked the latter, "how did you get on today?"

"Not too badly?" returned Brown. "I took 63."

"Marvellous!" exclaimed the other. "Why, it's wonderful for a beginner!"

"I thought so, too," replied Brown. And he added, "I'm going to try the second hole tomorrow."

Worth the Money

AS THE old lady strolled through the park, two urchins confronted her.

"I say, lady," said the taller of the two, "my brother does fine imitashings. Give 'im a penny and he'll imitate a hen."

"Dear, dear!" smiled the old lady. "And what will he do—will he cackle?"

"No," replied the lad, with a look of contempt, "'e won't do no cheap imitashings o' that sort. 'E'll eat a worm!"

The Piano

By DR. FRANK CRANE.

If you were limited to one book you might want the dictionary. Some people would want the Bible. If you were limited to one piece of furniture in the house your choice should be the piano.

The piano is easily the most important instrument in the world.

It is the greatest common denominator of all musical instruments.

Most music that is written for an orchestra or a banjo, a saxophone or the human voice is reducible to a piano score, and usually is first composed on the piano.

There is no doubt about music being the most cultural of studies. It connotes rhythm and harmony, two things that are essential in all departments of human activity. Rhythm is necessary even in the motion pictures, and you must have a sense of harmony if you are going to be an orator, a painter or a sculptor.

The piano is the best door to the knowledge of music. Almost everybody enters into the field of music by that door.

The piano is the heart of the home. About it naturally groups all the family. A silent house is essentially a desolate one.

The piano is the life of every social gathering.

If anyone can play the piano, even manage so-so with accompaniments, a group gathers around him and the house is enlivened by the voices of the young, or partners are chosen for dancing.

Almost every child can learn music if he is taught young enough. Modern methods of instruction are so simple that even the dullest can understand.

It is a deprivation for any child not to know the piano.

It is the best form of self-expression. As Thomas Moore's Anacreontic runs:

"Music! Oh, how faint, how weak,
Language fades before thy spell!
Oh, why should passion ever speak,
When thou canst breathe her soul so well?"

Our moments of greatest delight, perhaps, are our moments of self-expression. Nothing is better suited to fully set forth our phases of emotion than the piano.

No substitute will do. It is not enough to play the harp or the violin without a basic acquaintance with the piano.

Of course there is pleasure in attending concerts, or listening to band music, or singing, but no pleasure is so full and so profitable, withal, as the joy we get in making our own music. Again I say that if you are to buy only one piece of furniture for your home, let it be a piano.

Right Angles

By ALEXANDER CAIRNS

Echolalia.

BONBONS to biscuits you don't know what that long-legged word means. Neither did I till last week. It was this way:

I was trading Sherlock tales with the prima donna of a penal institution for women and she told me this:

She entered the reception room and, indicating with a nod of her marcel four idiots in waiting, she said: "Not an ounce of brains among them." Then she was startled to hear one of them repeat her words, "an ounce of brains."

Reflection came to her rescue and she recognized the idiot as one afflicted with echolalia. And she swore by the beard of Hippocrates that said echolalia was a word properly credentialed by Webster and that it meant one who echoes another's words ignorant of their meaning. I verified that.

She said the alienists would make short shrift of her mocker, for he could not formulate an intelligent sentence though it should change his address to millionaire's row.

We are not contending here that all parrots are idiots, but we insist that echolalia is not an essential attribute of the intelligentsia.

A science item declares that one pair of English sparrows, if let unmolested to reproduce at compound interest, in 10 years would have the progeny of 275,000,000,000.

Possibly human parrots are less prolific than sparrows, but judging by the sparsity of unused ideas, their tribe must give the sea sands a run for their money.

It might be an intellectually healthful practice for us to think of ourselves as inoculated with the virus of echolalia every time we play the parrot role for the words or wisdom of others.

Plagiarism is the larceny of language and its penalty is literary death. With what term then shall we indicate the filching of whole philosophical systems which the thief has never followed to their logical lair? The owner's tag is still on half of the world's talk and conversation is but an express wagon for the transfer of other men's baggage.

No renaissance was ever instituted by victims of echolalia. When Greece spawned genius in carload lots it was the gestation and obstetrics of social and artistic premises as new as the dawn on Olympus.

Better a singer of the untongued songs of the Syrian shepherds than a troubadour teller of tales as dead as the ashes of Sodom.

Hero Worship

WE shall probably make a big fuss about the American victors in the Olympic games when they return.

But it will be nothing compared with the attention shown the Olympic victors in the old days.

Poets like Pindar were engaged by the state to sing the hero's name.
